

Pickaway Receives Snow Removal Help

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration late Wednesday afternoon designated Pickaway and 15 other Ohio Counties to receive special emergency snow removal aid.

The additions bring to 38 the number of Ohio counties offered federal road clearance help since President Jimmy Carter declared Ohio an emergency area last week.

Dennis Kwiatkowski, FDAA's Deputy Federal Coordinating Officer in charge of the Ohio operation, said representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers would be sent to Pickaway County to engage local firms to do the work.

The federal help will be geared at opening school bus routes, public roads most used by emergency vehicles, and public roads serving concentrated population areas to two lanes.

Although State, County, and Townships crews have been working around the clock, local snow removal budgets have all but been depleted. Some rural roads have been partially blocked by drifting snow for almost two weeks.

"Hundreds of miles of rural Ohio roads are still limited to only one lane of traffic," Kwiatkowski said, "posing a hazard to the health and safety of travelers."

Besides, Pickaway, other counties to receive emergency assistance are Athens, Belmont, Brown, Clermont, Drake, Harden, Jefferson, Knox, Miami, Muskingham, Noble, Perry, Preble, Ross, and Washington.

The Ohio Department of Transportation is continuing its review of road conditions in remaining counties, and is providing a list of priorities to Curtis Griffith Jr., state coordinating officer for the Ohio Disaster Services Agency which is working with the FDAA.

So far, the Army Corps of Engineers has let snow removal contracts with local firms totalling an outside limit of some $600,000 under the emergency declared for Ohio.

Individuals and contractors with available equipment that can be used to move snow are urged to contact Pickaway County Engineer Henry McCrady.

Trustees and clerks of the county's 15 townships have completed detailed estimates of the cost of snow removal and damage caused by the snow removal. These estimates will be delivered to State Highway Division 6 headquarters at Delaware by Edgar Haral, chairman of the trustees and clerks association and Ed Pritchard, a committeeman.

The estimated additional cost of snow removal this year for the townships was placed at $106,500.

According to Haral, Division 6 officials have indicated the townships may be able to recover a portion of this money already spent.

ODNR Offers Special Program

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR) has a conservation education program available statewide for teachers and students whose schools have been temporarily closed as a result of the energy crisis.

As part of the program, environmental education packets containing ODNR publications on conservation concepts and management practices are available without cost to teachers.

The publications contain conservation information on water resources, wildlife, natural areas, plants, and geological and mineral resources. The teaching aids are not available in classroom quantities, but are designed to be used by teachers as resource material.

"The education packets can serve as valuable aids to teachers during this period when energy conservation is of vital importance to all Ohioans and especially our children," said Robert

W. Teater, Natural Resources Director.

For more information concerning the environmental education packets, contact the Environmental Education Section, Office of Public Information and Education, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus 43224 or phone (614) 466-5884.

In addition to the packets, natural resource and conservation films for all ages are available to groups and television stations by contacting ODNR's Film Library in Columbus or phoning (614) 466-3138.

Natural resource specialists are also available, as part of the environmental education program, for talks on radio and television programs stressing conservation ideas and concepts.

In addition to the statewide program, a special conservation movie and discussion series will be conducted at ODNR's Columbus headquarters during February for Central Ohio students out of class due to school closings.

The education series will be held Wednesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to noon on Feb. 9-11, 16-18 and 23-25. There will be additional Thursday afternoon sessions from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

ODNR's Environmental Education Section will conduct the series in the first floor conference room, Building C, 1952 Belcher Drive, Fountain Square, Columbus. The Department's Fountain Square office complex is just east of Northland Shopping Center and south of Morse Road in northeast Columbus. Reservations should be made by calling the Environmental Education Section at (614) 466-5884.

Students attending the sessions will view a natural resource conservation film. Following the film, a resource

Ban On Rhodesian Chrome Promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, in a move underscoring the Carter administration's support for black majority rule in Africa, is expected to urge Congress to reinstate a total ban on U.S. imports of Rhodesian chrome.

Vance's endorsement today of a bill to halt the imports is intended as a signal of American intentions to African black leaders, officials said. Officials say the endorsement also serves notice to Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith that he cannot stall indefinitely on demands that his white minority government relinquish power to the black majority.

While Vance's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on Africa laid out the administration view, aides said the hearings also were aimed at forcing Congress to commit itself to the prospect of honoring international economic sanctions imposed against Rhodesia by the United Nations.

The U.N. adopted the British-backed ban on chrome exports from Rhodesia in 1966, but Congress in 1971 amended U.S. law to allow American companies to import the metal from the African country.

Subcommittee chairman Dick Clark, D-Iowa, told the panel on Wednesday his bill to repeal the so-called Byrd amendment "would add significantly to international pressure for a negotiated settlement" of the Rhodesian crisis.

U.S. policy, he said, has exposed the United States to charges of hypocrisy in its dealings with southern Africa, and may have falsely encouraged Smith to believe the United States ultimately would come to the rescue of his government.

"Only congressional action to end this support once and for all will convince the Smith regime that the United States is on the side of racial equality and majority rule," Clark said.

Clark's proposal was backed by the United Steelworkers Union, which said repeal of the Byrd amendment would not imperil jobs in U.S. industry. That concern should not be used to undermine the embargo, "thereby contributing to the repression of civil liberties for the majority of Rhodesians," said union spokesman John J. Sheehan.

But E.F. Andrews, a vice president of Allegheny Ludlum Industries, testified on behalf of stainless steel makers that while U.S. reliance on Rhodesian chrome has declined in recent years, it would be "hazardous and undesirable" for the United States to limit access to any raw material obtainable only from foreign sources.

Chrome ore is mined only in Rhodesia, South Africa, Turkey and the Soviet Union.

Andrews said the loss of Rhodesian chrome would increase U.S. dependence on South African chrome and push prices up. And if both of those sources were lost, he said, the Soviet Union would become the primary source as it was before the embargo was lifted.

Energy Probe Begins

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A state Senate committee opened an investigation of the four major Ohio gas companies, while Democratic legislative leaders stood firm behind a controversial natural gas pricing law Wednesday.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, and Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, refused to suspend a law that forces gas utilities to charge only those who use emergency gas for the cost of the high cost fuel.

Columbia Gas of Ohio claims the law technically prevents them from making emergency gas available to the residential sector. Spokesmen on both sides of the issue concede the language in question is difficult to interpret.

But in a letter to Columbia Chairman Marvin E. White, Riffe said, "if you ever reach a point where emergency purchase of gas will be sent to supply your residential customers, then you would have to be in a position where you have completely run out of natural gas."

"If you are in a position as described," Riffe continued, "the customer who uses the gas pays for the gas."

The House leader said he was puzzled by the utility's request for the law to be overturned because "it is my present understanding that Columbia is now buying emergency gas and has no intention of using that gas to supply its residential customers."

In any event, he said the new federal gas act would supersede the state law if there were any question about providing gas to homeowners and renters.

The Senate Energy and Public Utilities Committee launched its probe with testimony from an outspoken critic of gas and oil companies, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum.

Metzenbaum urged the panel to study the relationship between the gas companies and their pipeline suppliers to determine if competition should be restored in public utilities.

Three of the companies under investigation, Columbia, Dayton Power & Light and Cincinnati Gas & Electric, get most of their gas from the Columbia Gas Transmission Corp.

A second hearing has been set for Monday with representatives of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio expected to testify.

Gunman Ignores Pledge Of Immunity

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A vengeance-seeking gunman, who held a mortgage company director hostage through a second night in a booby-trapped apartment despite an offer of immunity from prosecution, said today he felt he would be "a marked man" for life.

Anthony G. Kiritis made the comment in a telephone interview with WIBC radio news director Fred Heckman, to whom he has spoken several times while holed up in his third-floor apartment on the city's west side.

"I've already lost all my self-respect," Kiritis said. "I'm going to be a marked man all my life."

Frustrated police and sheriff's deputies maintained their vigil near the building. Occasionally, one or two uniformed officers walked between a large bus used as a police command center and a neighboring building where the sheriff's department set up headquarters.

A friend took a copy of the immunity offer Wednesday night to the apartment where Kiritis held executive Richard O. Hall hostage, said George Martz, spokesman for police negotiators.

Martz said the friend read the offer through the boobytrapped front door to Kiritis, who told him that he didn't want to think about it then and preferred to wait until morning.

Martz said the document, signed by a deputy prosecutor, offered "total immunity" from arrest or psychiatric confinement to Kiritis, the 44-year-old bachelor who took Hall prisoner on Tuesday morning as part of a plan for revenge against the mortgage company.

"Tony has given us four demands and we met all of them," said Martz.

Sewage Plant Designers Re-File Suit

The Circleville Public Utilities Department has been sued in Southern District Federal Court of Ohio by the New York engineering firm of Hazen and Sawyer.

The firm, designers of Circleville's new sewage treatment plant, had previously sued in a New York Federal Court. That suit was dismissed by the court on the basis that it had no jurisdiction in the matter.

The amount of the suit is $130,647.09 which Hazen and Sawyer contends is owed them by the public utilities department. Although the New York firm designed the plant, its contract was terminated and the Firm of Floyd G. Brown was employed to perform the general supervision of construction of the plant.

The city public utilities department is represented by the Columbus law firm of Porter, Stanley, Platt and Arthur and by city solicitor John Adkins.

Rhodes Asks Gas Probe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has asked an immediate investigation of excess earnings by natural gas distributors during the energy crisis.

In a letter to C. Luther Heckman, Public Utilities Commission chairman, Rhodes directed the chairman to "take all legal steps to insure that rates of return earned by the various companies are not excessive."

Rhodes said he asked the investigation upon learning that "...a question being asked by Ohioans is whether or not Ohio's gas utilities will reap excessive earnings because of the gas crisis."

The governor's order also follows reports earlier this week that gas companies might see profits this quarter increase by 100 per cent because of the extraordinary demand for natural gas by the residential sector. That group of customers consumes more than half of all gas sold in Ohio and pays a premium compared to industrial and large commercial users.

Authorities learned that Kiritis recently bought 100 pounds of dynamite and police said they believed his declaration that the apartment has been rigged so that it could blow up.

"We felt it was more than a possibility that the dynamite would be set off," said Martz, a deputy Marion County prosecutor.

Hall, 42, is director of a mortgage company that lent Kiritis $130,000 to buy 17 acres of land on which he planned to build a shopping center.

Kiritis contends he was swindled.

On Tuesday, Kiritis demanded and was granted release from the loan and a public apology from Hall's Meridian Mortgage Co. He also demanded unspecified monetary damages stemming from the mortgage dispute and immunity from any damages arising from his actions after abducting Hall.

"I don't like it," Martz said of the immunity offer, "but that's beside the point. What are you going to do about it?"

PRESENTATION — At the Tuesday night meeting of the Elks Singers, music departments from the four Pickaway County High Schools received checks in the amount of $400 for their use. The Singers also donated $500 to the Cerebral Palsy Foundation. The money was from funds raised during the Singers' fourth annual "Night of Harmony" on Nov. 13. Through various concerts and fund raising activities the Elks Singers donate regularly to area high school music departments and cerebral palsy. Over a four year period, the Singers have presented $5,260 to high school music departments and $1,707 to the Cerebral Palsy Foundation. Pictured above presenting one of the checks is George Roth, left, the president of the Singers. Receiving the money is Miss Darlene Freeman, Choir Director at Teays Valley High School, and looking on are Kathy Weaver and Vicky Hunt, right, music students at Logan Elm High School.

Feds May Pay Fuel Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — If your family budget has been jolted by this winter's home heating bills there could be some financial relief coming from the federal government.

The Senate Budget Committee is recommending that the government pay up to $250 of the fuel bills of families in the areas hardest-hit by the uncommonly cold winter.

And, according to committee chairman Edmund S. Muskie, President Carter is expected to announce his support of such a plan today.

Muskie's panel wrote in the special fuel-bill payment plan Wednesday as it approved an emergency resolution that is necessary before Carter's program of tax cuts and federal spending to stimulate the economy can be considered by Congress.

The committee, which aims to set economic policy for the Senate, approved a $16.8-billion package of tax cuts and spending for the next eight months, about $1.8 billion above what Carter proposed. The House Budget Committee earlier voted for $17.3 billion.

Carter has said he could go along with some changes in his own package but has cautioned Congress against any sharp increase. Senate aides say the White House has expressed no great concern about the changes prepared by the two committees.

The two budget committees' actions would accommodate the $50-per-person tax rebate envisioned by Carter as well as any other type of tax-cut proposal, so long as it cost no more than $12 billion this fiscal year. However, neither committee is locked into supporting the rebate.

The Senate committee did endorse, on an 8-to-6 party-line vote, Carter's plan to mail a $50 bonus to each of the 36 million recipients of Social Security, Supplemental Security Income and railroad-retirement benefits. The House panel okayed the provision last week.

The Senate panel increased what Carter had asked to spend over the next eight months for special aid to cities, counties and states; publicworks projects, employment training and public-service jobs, such as in hospitals and parks.

The Senate panel went along with its House counterpart in recommending that an extra $500 million be spent to ensure that jobless persons in all 50 states be eligible for 52 weeks of unemployment compensation. Without congressional action, jobless benefits will drop to a 39-week maximum on March 31.

The plan to have the federal government help low and middle-income families with their winter fuel bills was proposed last week by two liberals, Muskie and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Muskie said the program would have the federal government make grants to the states hardest hit by the winter. The governors would make payments directly to fuel suppliers on behalf of customers, under a formula to be worked out by federal officials.

Twenty-two states have called for such assistance for families in danger of having their fuel cut off for lack of payment.

4 Ohio Politicians Got Illicit Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Ohio politicians were among 71 current and former congressmen and others who received about $40,000 in illegal corporate contributions from American Airlines between 1971 and 1973.

Included on a list made public by the airline Wednesday, and the amounts they received, were former Sen. Robert Taft Jr., $100; former Rep. Frank T. Bow, $100; Rep. Samuel L. Devine, $300, and former Rep. William E. Minshall, $200.

Weather

Mostly sunny and mild today with a high near 50. Fair tonight with a low in the lower 30s. Partly cloudy and continued mild Friday with a high in the low 50s. Chances of precipitation, zero per cent today and tonight and 10 per cent Friday. Wednesday's high was 44 with a low of 31.

Warnke Opponents Seek Powers Curb

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market chalked up some scattered gains today in a technical rebound from Wednesday's broad setback.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained more than a point in the early going. Advances outnumbered declines by a small margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers traced the upturn largely to internal market forces. They said investors were still expecting economic statistics in the immediate future to show the adverse effects of bad weather this winter.

Government reports were due today on January retail sales and Friday on wholesale prices for January.

Today's prices included Northwest Airlines, down 1/8 at 25 1/2; Texaco, off 1/4 at 28, and Digital Equipment, up 1/2 at 44 1/4.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 8.40 to 933.84, bringing its loss since the start of the year to more than 70 points.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 5-2 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 23.64 million shares, against 24.04 million on Tuesday.

The NYSE's composite index lost .47 to 54.86.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .81 to 112.43.

Warnke Opponents Seek Powers Curb

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents to Paul Warnke as chief arms negotiator with the Soviet Union are concentrating on an effort to force President Carter into a hardline negotiating position when Strategic Arms Limitation Talks resume later this year.

During confirmation hearings by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Wednesday, Paul Nitze outlined this approach when he said the issue is not only the man, but the American position.

Nitze was among three witnesses who testified against Warnke's nomination to be director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and to head the delegation that will negotiate a new SALT treaty to replace one that expires this year. As a former deputy secretary of defense and a ranking member of the past SALT negotiating delegation, Nitze is considered the most important of Warnke's opponents.

He also reflects the position of such senators as Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Robert Griffin, R-Mich., who are working to toughen the American stance for the arms talks.

In general, they contend that without a strict agreement, the United States should strengthen and increase its nuclear weaponry.

Nitze was asked several times why President Carter should not have anybody he wants as his prime arms control adviser and negotiator. "One issue is the man," Nitze replied, "but this is also properly a debate about the issue" of the American position in dealing with the Soviets on arms limitations.

Nitze told the committee he distrusts Carter's views on the negotiations. Asked if he thought the President's position might be contrary to the national interest, he replied: "Yes, I do have that view.... It would be a tragedy if the executive branch would negotiate a treaty ... and then have the Senate reject it. The political consequences would be very serious indeed."

In testimony Tuesday, Warnke outlined his position as calling for continued American strategic strength. Any arms limitations should be strictly reciprocal, he said, adding that "I reject any concept of unilateral disarmament on the part of the United States."

Nitze also hit Warnke in personal terms, accusing him of bad logic and inconsistency. He said Warnke has taken "a highly cavalier attitude" on cuts in strategic forces and on "those improved U.S. nuclear capabilities" that would deter Soviet aggression.

Nitze called him "absolutely asinine," added that "I don't think he understands what he says" and said he may "not be a qualified student or competent judge" of strategic and nuclear matters.

Despite the opposition, Warnke is certain to get committee and Senate approval.

Ohio Coal Benefits, Drawbacks Studied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The chairman of the House Energy and Environment Committee says the group wants to learn the benefits as well as the health hazards of burning Ohio coal.

To that end, Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Boardman, has begun a series of committee hearings with Peter Susey, deputy director of the Energy Resource and Development Agency, the first to testify.

In future sessions, representatives of the Ohio Lung Association, federal ERDA and federal and state Environmental Protection agencies, will participate in the "education process," as Carney terms the hearings.

"We're trying to gather background for a solid coal policy for the state," Carney said.

On Wednesday Susey told the committee that available natural gas supplies by 1980 will be sufficient only to provide residential heating needs at 2972 levels.

Susey, an advocate of lifting stringent federal environmental regulations that restrict burning Ohio coal in many areas, told the lawmakers there is evidence that removing particulate matter from coal smoke is a sufficient environmental move to protect health.

He repeated a contention, frequently quoted by C. Luther Heckman, Public Utilities Commission chairman, that the European approach to cleaning coal emissions disregards sulfur dioxide levels once the particulate emissions are curbed.

In making his point that Ohio's energy future depends on burning locally mined coal, Susey told the legislators that this state depends upon that fuel for 41 per cent of its energy needs. He said the national dependence on coal is only 17 per cent.

Susey, citing Federal Energy Administration figures, said that only five per cent of all new national gas reserves make it into the interstate delivery system.

Compounding Ohio's problem, he said, is its dependency on that system for 93 per cent of its natural gas supplies.

Susey, representing ERDA, joins the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, PUCO and Gov. James A. Rhodes in opposing the federal sulfur dioxide standards.

Along with a majority of Ohio industries and coal miners, the agencies complain that adoption of the federal standards will mean increased electricity bills, higher priced Ohio-produced goods and lost jobs.

Susey, agreeing with figures presented by coal miners, claims the federal standards mean some 7,000 miners will lose their jobs and that Ohio coal production will diminish by 50 per cent under the federal plan.

Susey even predicted that some Ohio industry will move out of the state closer to supplies of low sulfur coal now found in Kentucky and western states.

He and others predict the federal sulfur standards will cost Ohio industry $500 million for filtering equipment.

Braham Named To Library Post

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Walter T. Brahm, former state librarian in Ohio and Connecticut, has been named director of development for the Ohio Library Foundation.

The position was created to promote the foundation, which is made up of representatives of libraries and schools in Ohio and was organized in 1963 to improve library service in the state.

Brahm was state librarian for Ohio from 1942 to 1963 and state librarian in Connecticut from 1964 to 1975.

New Panama Canal Proposal Readied

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's special envoys are preparing to leave for Panama amid reports that the Carter administration is ready to ease U. S. terms for a new Canal Treaty.

Major elements of Carter's projected compromise remain secret, but U.S. officials say they expect the President, represented in the talks by Washington lawyer Sol M. Linowitz, to move nearer Panamanian demands on several key issues.

As U.S. negotiators prepared to leave Sunday for Panama, Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino Boyd resigned Wednesday in a dispute with strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos Herrera over the canal talks.

Torrijos named as Boyd's replacement, Nicolas Gonzalez Revilla, Panama's current ambassador to the United States.

U.S. sources say the canal talks issues on which U.S. movement is expected relate to the duration of the new treaty, circumstances in which the United States can exercise primary rights to defend the canal, the size of the 553-square mile Canal Zone, arrangements that would give Panama a bigger share of Canal tolls and other revenue and ways of expanding the waterway so that it can handle big new ships.

Carter this week named Linowitz co-negotiator, along with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker who, until now, has for years been in sole charge of the slowmoving negotiations.

With Linowitz's appointment, Carter signaled Panama that he intends a personal role in the talks. As if to underline the resolve to hustle the negotiations toward a settlement, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, before taking office, told Costa Rican Foreign Minister Gonzalo Fazio a new pact could be achieved by April or May.

Thieves Take Soybeans

The Circleville Police Department investigated a report of grand theft at the Pickaway Grain Company this morning.

According to the report, the culprits drove a pick-up truck under a loading bin, sometime during the night, where they pulled a chain to unload soybeans from the bin. The beans fell into the waiting truck, and after filling it the thieves left.

In all, officials at the Pickaway Grain Company estimated that 100 bushels of soybeans were taken. Total value of the stolen merchandise was set at approximately $713. Ptl. Alan Hawks investigated the incident.

Johnson To Speak At Westfall FFA Banquet

Ed Johnson, president of Agri Communicators Inc., will be the speaker at the annual Westfall FFA Banquet to be held at the Blue Drummer Steak House in Circleville at 7 p.m. on March 28.

Johnson is heard daily on 51 radio stations in Ohio in addition to 12 stations in Pennsylvania. His network also includes four television stations.

He is the chief track announcer of the National Tractor Pullers Assn.

In addition to his busy broadcasting schedule, Ed also serves as a member of the State 4-H Advisory Committee and the Ohio Agriculture Council. He is past chairman of the North Eastern Region of the National Association of Farm Broadcasters, is a lifetime member of the FFA Alumni Assn., Dairy Shrine Club and the recipient of the Ohio FFA VIP Award and Honorary State Farmer Degree.

Johnson was raised on a 380 acre general livestock farm near Lancaster and graduated from Ohio State University with a dual major in agricultural economics and agricultural education. He currently lives on a small cow-calf operation in Delaware with his wife Marilyn and two children, Julie and Bart.

He is a former resident of Pickaway County.

specialist from ODNR will answer student's questions concerning the concepts stressed in the film.

Students participating in the Wednesday morning sessions will view the film "The Search: The Geological Survey In Ohio," which discusses the state's geological history and the economic development of our mineral resources.

Thursday morning programs of the educational series will be concerned with Ohio's natural areas. The ODNR film "The Legacy", which provides an in-depth view of Ohio's natural areas system, will be seen by the students.

An additional session on Thursday afternoons will be conducted by ODNR's Division of Watercraft.

A watercraft education-enforcement officer will discuss boating safety after students view the film "A Day on the Bay."

The importance of wildlife management will be the topic of Friday's sessions of the conservation education program. ODNR's Division of Wildlife will present the film "Ohio's Wild Places" to the students.

For further information concerning the special conservation program for Central Ohio students contact ODNR's Environmental Education Section or your local school system.

OU-Lancaster To Discuss Financial Aids

Ohio University-Lancaster will hold its annual College and Financial Aids Night this year on Feb. 17 from 6-8:30 p.m. in the student lounge. The program will consist of an open house format. Coffee and donuts will be served by the Circle K student organization.

High school students who plan to attend Ohio University, either Lancaster or Athens campus in the fall, adults who are thinking about entering or returning to college, people who are interested in Ohio University-Lancaster technical programs or who would like to build on their present tech degree, registered nurses who would like to complete a BSN degree and Ohio University-Lancaster students who are planning to transfer to Athens are urged to attend if they have questions about their education.

Assistant Deans from the various colleges of Ohio University and professors will be on hand to meet with students. Financial Aid counselors, O.U. - Housing representatives and various O.U.-L administrators will also be on hand to assist the public. All interested persons should feel free to come out and let us help you further your educational growth.

Public Hearing On Disease Of Swine Set

A public hearing will be held on Monday, February 14, to consider the establishment of a regulation to control the spread of the Aujeszky's disease in swine.

John M. Stackhouse, Director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, explained, "We are proposing to adopt a change in existing regulations which govern the importation of swine into Ohio to require that all breeding swine imported must be proven to be free of the Aujeszky's disease."

Persons shipping or bringing breeding swine into Ohio, will have to show evidence of a negative test for Aujeszky's disease, sometimes referred to as "pseudorabies".

Aujeszky's disease causes death losses of up to 100 per cent in pigs less than two weeks old. Humans are not susceptible to this disease. There has been very few cases of this disease in Ohio; however, at least one neighboring state has had an increase in the number of cases.

The hearing will be held in Room 713, Ohio Departments Building, 65 South Front Street, Columbus, Ohio, beginning at 2 p.m.

The Department of Agriculture is considering amending existing regulation number 901:1-17-02 to include the proposed aforementioned importation requirement.

Individuals who wish to testify on the proposed change in the swine importation regulations are encouraged to attend the hearing. Persons desiring more information on the proposed changes may call the Department's Division of Animal Industry at 614-866-6361.

Pickaway-Ross Offers A Look At Vocations

Feb. 6-12 has been designated as National Vocational Education Week. It will be observed throughout the country by educational institutions, teachers and students. The theme "Vocational Education builds the Skills of America" denotes the importance of the programs offered.

Ralph Neal, Director, stated that the purpose of this national observance is to bring attention to the merits and accomplishments of vocational education. He encourages citizens of the community to visit the school during this week to view on-going projects and programs.

Neal also stated that both young people and adults today face a tremendous task of selecting career development programs. Careful investigation and observation are necessary for the potential student to choose the career training program which will provide the most satisfying and rewarding careers.

The faculty of the Pickaway-Ross Vocational Center is ready to answer any questions you may have regarding Vocational Education. For additional information, please call 474-3331.

Carter Honeymoon With Congress Tested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats are putting their stamp on President Carter's economic stimulus program in ways that could test the president's stated eagerness to prolong his honeymoon with Congress.

Carter held his first full-scale news conference on Tuesday and said he thought he could accept the changes Congress was likely to make in his proposals to create jobs and cut taxes. He also said complaints from congressional leaders about his failure to consult often enough with them were justified.

However, on the changes in his economic program, Carter warned that "if such drastic changes were made in it that would cause me to doubt its effectiveness or its viability, I would, of course, veto it."

As he spoke, Congressional Democrats were putting the finishing touches on a public works jobs bill twice the size of the program Carter requested.

And some of his tax proposals, including a plan for a $50 rebate to most Americans, have run into serious opposition on Capitol Hill.

In the delicate area of arms negotiations with the Soviet Union, there also were signs of future trouble between the new president and Congress in opposition that has emerged to his appointment of Paul Warnke to head the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Despite opposition from senators who say Warnke would be too willing to compromise with the Russians, his nomination appeared headed for approval by the Senate and he received a new endorsement from Carter.

Much of Carter's nationally broadcast news conference was devoted to repeating his pledges to work closely with Congress and also to trying to calm some of the congressional uneasiness over Warnke.

On Capitol Hill, members of Congress appeared anxious to avoid a rhetorical clash with the president, not yet three weeks in office. Carter's comments on domestic and foreign policy and his pointed mention of his veto power, drew no reaction from members of the House and Senate.

Meanwhile, Senate Public Works Committee chairman Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., said expansion of the jobs program had tentative approval from the White House.

"I have a feeling the administration is favorable to the $4 billion and might be favorable to condensing it into a short period of time," Randolph said.

Carter had asked for $2 billion for next year and another $2 billion for the following year. Randolph was talking about spending the entire $4 billion the first year.

At his news conference, the president referred to his economic proposals as "a comprehensive package of two-year duration that is well-balanced. There is a limit on how much money you can spend on public works without wasting money."

He didn't mention the plan to double the size of the jobs program or suggest whether such an increase would still keep it within the limit that could be spent without waste.

Carter was asked about a statement by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., that "some of your top advisers seem to have an attitude of confrontation regarding Congress."

Carter responded that "we have given them cause for some of the complaints inadvertently We have not been adequately careful in the initial days in dealing with the Congress."

Two top administration officials, Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Frank Moore, the president's congressional liaison, visited O'Neill and other House Democrats on Tuesday and after the session O'Neill declared, "It's all harmonious now."

Warnke was before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee as Carter was telling questioners that "I have complete confidence in him."

Warnke, a Washington attorney, who was a top adviser to Sen. George McGovern in his unsuccessful campaign as Democratic presidential nominee in 1972, told the Foreign Relations Committee that "I reject any concept of unilateral disarmament on the part of the United States." An unsigned memorandum circulated among many members of the Senate had contended that Warnke's positions on arms issues amounted to support for unilateral disarmament.

Giving his own views on arms issues, Carter said he believes the United States has superior nuclear capability compared with the Soviet Union but that both superpowers are "roughly equivalent ... in that either the Soviet Union or we could destroy a major part of the other nation" in a nuclear exchange.

He said it was "very, very important" that both nations be willing to offer initiatives to reduce armaments.

Carter used the news conference to urge the Soviets publicly to stop deployment of a short-range mobile missile which he said could touch off another round of escalation in arms development.

He also disclosed that he has suggested to the Soviets that the two nations agree to give each other 24 to 48 hours notice "before we launch any kind of intercontinental ballistic missile in a test phase."

Carter also said he is concerned about the U.S. sale of concussion bombs to foreign governments, but that he has not decided yet whether to cancel sale of the weapons to Israel. The sale had been promoted by the Ford administration.

Politicians Coming Up

Researchers generally are scholarly types whose studies deal with as yet unsolved problems in such fields as medicine, industry or science. Every now and then they divert their attention to something less esoteric and the results may tell something about changing mores.

So it is that a Northeastern University associate professor and a Temple University graduate student surveyed the gossip columns carried in the newspapers of one of the nation's largest cities during the 1950s, '60s and '70s to see if gossip interests had changed. They had.

In the 1950s, gossip about show business personalities dominated 70 per cent of the column space. Interest in those characters has dropped to about 50 per cent of the space today. The fastest growing area of interest now are politicians, about whom five times more appears today than was the case in the 1950s.

Whether that is because politicians are considered more entertaining than professional entertainers or because government has become more of a dominant force, the researchers do not venture to guess.

Something Ms-ing

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — Question: What is a "Ms."?

Answer: "Ms." is a courtesy title for a liberated woman who doesn't consider it any of your damn business whether she's married or single.

Question: How do you pronounce "Ms."?

Answer: With difficulty, a slur, and as quickly as possible.

Question: Do you like being termed a "Ms."?

Answer: It's not bad, but I'd prefer "Your Royal Highness."

The unlikely conversation, above, illustrates the nationwide attitudes toward the going catchword for womanhood — "Ms."

It is, according to the people who write dictionaries, a "controversial" term, admired by modernists and despised by traditionalists. Actually, in an informal survey I recently undertook among both men and women in an office setting, "Ms." is looked upon with tolerance and ennui. There is a decided take-it-or-leave-it attitude toward the abbreviation — a feeling of approval in principle, but disapproval in pronunciation. "Trying to say it out loud, on the telephone for instance — as in, 'May I speak to Ms. Jones' — is ridiculous," said one gentleman.

"Study yourself in a mirror while you're saying 'Ms.' You look like you're sneering."

One woman (married) in my office thinks "the term is supposed to eliminate prejudice against women who are single, in a society that always thought women were better off married. But that's rather silly these days, when women are saying you're really more successful if you stay independent of one man. I mean, that's the new sign of success — being strong enough to stay single. So 'Miss' should be a proud term these days. 'Ms.' is just fudging around and trying to cover up."

Most Americans are under the impression that "Ms." is a new term as a title of womanhood, because it only began to be used about five years ago — and didn't make the dictionaries until a few 1973 editions. But, according to an editor at Merriam-Webster, "Ms." is an oldie, if not necessarily a goodie.

In the Handbook of Old Burial Hill, published in Plymouth, Mass., the following tombstone epitaph is recorded:

"Here lies Interred the body of Ms Sara Spooner . . . She was married. She died in 1767."

"As seen from that tombstone inscription," writes Anne Soukhanov, associate editor of Webster's Secretarial Handbook, "Ms. isn't the linguistic upstart that some people think it is — although in this case it probably was an abbreviation for Mistress."

"Actually, we discovered some time ago that Ms. was used long before equal rights became an issue. Merriam first noted it in 1950, especially relating to business correspondence. Oddly enough, at that time it was men — not women — who were looking for a useful courtesy title to give to women who did not care to indicate their marital status."

Ms. Soukhanov, who may or may not be affiliated legally or otherwise with a man, says "Ms." is a noun, just like Mr., Mrs. and Miss, and "honorifics" such as Sir, Dame, Lord and Lady.

The definition of Ms., at least in Webster, is "used instead of Miss or Mrs. (as when the marital status of a woman is unknown or irrelevant)."

The plural of "Ms." is flexible. In case you are addressing a bevy of women of unknown or irrelevant marital status, anything goes — Ms's, Mses., Mss. or even, if you're so inclined, Multi-Ms. Webster couldn't care less.

Early in the Ms.-mash, the more militant feminists called for Ms. to be used exclusively and universally for all females — but Miss and Mrs. refused to lie down and die. Many men, including then-President Nixon, just didn't like Ms. And, according to Soukhanov, neither did Ms. Mary Lindsay, wife of New York City's handsome ex-mayor.

Mary Lindsay said she was sticking with Mrs. because it had taken her some doing to get it!

Salt Theft Reported

CINCINNATI (AP) — Two years ago, at the height of spiraling sugar prices, thieves made a killing at Cincinnati farm.

Now it's salt, the type used for melting.

A Cincinnati salt company reported the theft Monday of 8,000 pounds of rock salt.

"There's such a shortage it's being called white gold," said Jim Carpenter, terminal manager for Cargill Salt Co.

Carpenter said thieves using a truck backed up to the firm's terminal late Friday in suburban Sedansville and made off with 150 bags, or approximately $400 worth of salt.

The salt had just recently arrived by barge on the ice-clogged Ohio River. Salt has been in short supply in the area due to a record 30.3 inches of snowfall in January that led heavy use by maintenance crews and home owners.

Rhodes Seeking Canadian Gas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes went to Ottawa, Canada Wednesday for an afternoon meeting with Canadian government officials in an attempt to obtain additional fuel supplies for Ohio, his office said.

Rhodes was accompanied by James Duerk, director of the Department of Economic and Community Development; Robert S. Ryan, executive director of the Ohio Energy and Resources Development Agency; and C. Luther Heckman, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission.

Columbia Transmission Corp., which supplies most of Ohio, already purchased natural gas from Canada, but the Federal Power Commission forced the company to share it with a southern utility.

Between 1830 and 1930 about 32 million people emigrated from Europe to the United States. The peak year was 1907, when a million and a quarter immigrants arrived.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I've had a mild heart attack and they made me give up smoking entirely. Now they're after me to give up drinking alcohol because they say it, too, is bad for the heart. Couldn't I cheat a little with both.

Mr. K. R. B., Wash., D.C.

Dear Mr. B.:

It's well established that "cheating" with tobacco can ultimately cheat you of years of added life.

There is no question about the fact that all tobacco, especially cigarettes, reduces the flow of blood to all organs of the body. The heart in particular is affected by the spasm of the arteries that's caused by tobacco.

A simple rule is laid down for all people who have ever had coronary heart disease. That is, that smoking is the surest, if slowest, way to commit suicide.

More and more evidence is coming to light that alcohol, too, has a bad effect on the muscle of the heart. The cells and the nerve complex within the heart that control its regularity can also be affected even by moderate, but sustained, drinking.

Most cardiologists are in agreement with the statement made by Dr. Dean

Mason and Dr. Leigh Segel, of the University of California. They state, "Present evidence indicates that alcohol exerts a toxic action on the myocardium (heart muscle) and . . . is responsible for a depression of its mechanical performance."

They also say, "Treatment of alcoholic heart disease always includes total abstinence which, in some cases, has been shown to reverse some forms of this condition."

You must know that neither your family physician nor your cardiologist establishes rules that are meant to punish you. Rather, they outline regimes that are meant to prolong your life, giving it not only longevity, but also quality.

At first, the restrictions imposed on you may seem to be too rigid. But when you begin to regain greater activity and normal productivity you, too, will agree that what seems deprivation is, indeed, a gift.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . . An angry, aggressive automobile driver threatens the lives of all those who surround him . . . his own life.

Ohio Senate Report

By OAKLEY C. COLLINS
17th District Senator

This week state leaders continued to grapple with Ohio's energy and weather problems last week. The General Assembly passed an emergency bill that will help schools with energy shortage impact.

Senate Bill 51 extends from the present 5 days to 20 days the number of "calamity days" in which a school can close and still meet the state requirement of a 182 day school year. Schools can now close up to 5 days due to "acts of God," such as bad weather. S.B. 51 includes 15 more calamity days due to an energy shortage.

The Ohio Revised Code gives the Governor power to declare an energy crisis when he finds that immediate action is necessary to protect the health, safety, or welfare of citizens in an acute energy shortage.

In a declared energy crisis the Governor may: issue orders necessary to manage the crisis that have full force of law, amend or rescind any state or local rule or law, and use the facilities and equipment of the state or any political subdivision to protect the economic and physical well being of Ohioans.

Such orders could conceivably include the closing or use of schools for emergency purposes. Governor Rhodes has so far carefully avoided such a drastic step. However, many schools have had to close due to lack of heating fuel and impassable roads.

An amendment to include closings due to weather in the extended grace period was rejected by the House and Senate.

The bill takes effect when signed by the Governor and remains in effect only for the 1976-77 school year.

New bills continue to be introduced in the House and Senate, including ones to: prohibit employer discrimination against employees who do not contribute to charitable collections (HB 96), permit judges to give stronger sentences for assault on senior citizens (HB 105), provide a tax exemption for home improvements (HB 109), and permit drilling for oil or gas in Lake Erie (HB 112).

Others include: nonpartisan election of PUCO members (SB 22), reduced utility bills for senior citizens (SB 32), appropriations for racial busing in Cleveland (SB 39), and elimination of the fixed constitutional limit on state debt not approved by the voters (S.J.R. 3).

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to personally commend people of Perry Twp. during the past weather crisis. The trustees have worked long hard hours along with the cooperation of the people keeping our roads open and passable.

The CB operators also should be given a big thank you for all of their help in sending messages and directing the people. Many homes in the area provided food and coffee to the workers which was greatly appreciated.

It takes a time of crisis to get back to the old neighborly feeling that we used to have and don't seem to find time for anymore.

MR. AND MRS.
DICK SOMERS
Clarksburg Pike

Dear Editor:

I am writing to express my thanks for the recent help I got when I needed it so much. I was snow bound on 16th Road three days from my children and in no way could anyone get me out.

We contacted different sources but no one knew what to do.

Then on Sunday of the third day I thought about contacting our dear sheriff's department and I want to thank them for their help and John Leist for sending a helicopter after me. I was air lifted to my home and children. I had been without my medicine which I am to have all the time. If they had not helped me I may have been in the hospital. No one will ever know how helpless I felt when I couldn't get to my children. Thanks once again to Sheriff Radcliff, John Leist, the helicopter crew and Red Cross.

They cannot be beaten when one really needs help.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember trading stamps, those little manifestations of the carnival spirit of the 1960s that, in the hearts of shoppers anyway, seemed about to replace the official coin of the realm?

Well, they're coming back! But, you say, you've heard that story before, almost every year in the past three or four. True. But now they're really coming back, the stamp people say because — are you prepared — you're ready for them.

Stamp people do have some expertise in this area, their survival being dependent upon how well they appeal to the instincts, desires and needs of shoppers. And they do have some evidence, although it may not yet make a case.

Still, H. W. Greenough, president of the Trading Stamp Institute of America, proclaims: "Most areas of the country will see a return of stamps in the next year."

Some chains are signing up again. The industry's volume was up 15 per cent last year. The games, books and sets of dishes, all meant to keep you coming to the same store each week, are said to be losing their appeal.

Most important of all, discounting, the biggest competitor to stamps, is believed to be on the way out. If it isn't, say some grocery officials, the food store industry might be.

In 1968, the height of the stamp mania, $900 million worth of them were put into the hands of consumers. Seventy-two per cent of the 32,000 supermarkets were said to be stamp-givers.

It took close to two decades of growth to reach that 70 per cent level. It took only four years or so to reverse the percentages. By 1973, only 30 per cent gave stamps. Many of the others stressed discounting, or price-cutting.

Price-cutting might have seemed the most perfectly logical development then, as it does now. What greater appeal to shopper instincts than a lowered price? None, apparently, none at all.

But storekeepers found price-cutting didn't necessarily breed loyalty. Instead, shoppers scurried around to benefit from specials at various stores, and down went store profits.

"When people shopped around, the store's mix went down the drain. They bought only the specials, and it reduced gross profits by 1.5 to 3 per cent," said Greenough.

The situation became critical for many stores. Several large chains fell into precarious financial positions and some were forced into bankruptcy proceedings.

The stamp people were poised. Gold Bond Stamps, Greenough's company, combined stamp-saving with price-cutting, permitting customers to trade their stamps for whatever special product discount the storeowner chose.

"I don't think stamps will ever again have 70 per cent of stores," said Greenough, "but they are on the way back." His own company, one of the privately owned Carlson Companies of Minneapolis, had a 20 per cent gain in 1976.

Targee are the grandparents and he has a great grandmother, Mrs. Anne Williams now living in Florida. The Targee's are at present visiting their son and his family which also includes two daughters.

Christmas Tree Project Termed Successful

When the final tallies were reviewed from the Community Christmas Tree project, Chairman Les Merrill termed it a "huge success."

He credits the initial year and the favorable weather towards the success, but contributions and the cooperation of all involved added to the favorable outcome.

The VFW auxiliary packaged the goodies of candy, fruits and nuts and they were handed out by the Circleville High School varsity cheerleaders. Berger Chef contributed lollipops, balloons and hamburger certificates.

After the baskets were distributed to the youngsters, those left over were given to the Pickaway County Boys' and Girls' homes, the county jail, local churches and Operation Rudolph.

Last-minute contributors are the North Court Street Barber Shop, B.P.O.E. Elks number 77, the RCA Plant and Roy Huffer Jr. who donated part of his first prize winnings towards the project for 1977.

Other prize winners are Willard Congrove of Circleville, James Oliver and Bob Thomas of Ashville and Faith Carter of Wellston.

Super Slurper May Revolutionize Diapers

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Super slurper, a blend of manmade materials and starch that could revolutionize farming and babies' diapers, is getting thirstier all the time: A scientist says it now absorbs 5,300 times its weight in distilled water.

Three hundred times its weight was all it could manage when developed in 1973 by five chemists for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Research Service.

The substance — patented on behalf of the public — has absorptive qualities vastly superior to anything else known to man, said Dr. William Doane, one of the developers.

"We're still trying to understand why it does what it does, and in doing so we found some new improvements," Doane said.

Super slurper is made by grafting acrylonitrile, the starting material for synthetics used in clothing and carpeting, to starch. The colorless material, which turns water to a gelatin, is known formally as grafted starch-polyacrylonitrile graft copolymer.

USDA program specialist Roger A. Eisenhauer said there is a potential market of 750 million to one billion pounds of slurper a year for agriculture, oil recovery chemicals, pharmaceuticals, cosmetics, towels and other uses.

The absorbent capacity of the compound drops when used in salt solutions such as blood or urine, and developments have not made significant improvements from slurper's original capacity for these solutions, Doane said.

But, he said, super slurper is 20 times more effective than cellulose now used in bandages and disposable diapers. The cellulose holds only about 30 times its weight in blood or urine.

Even more important, he said, is that cellulose subjected to pressure "like a squirming baby, only holds its own weight in urine.... Slurper still holds three-fourths of its capacity (up to 75 times) under such pressure."

The first application for slurper appears to be in agriculture. Inter Seeding Co. of Arcola will begin coating seeds with a patented super slurper process this spring.

Super slurper was patented last year by the USDA and its developers from the Northern Research Laboratory in Peoria were honored Saturday as inventors of the year by the Association for the Advancement of Invention and Innovation, Arlington, Va.

Adult Standards Don't Apply

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — "Parents should not apply adult standards to children's art," says Dr. Harlan Hoffa, professor of art education at the Pennsylvania State University. Young children don't draw to make an accurate picture of an object or a person, but to make symbolic representations, he says. "From a kid's point of view, it is a sign or symbol which stands for something else but is not necessarily a picture of it," Dr. Hoffa explains. "Adults need to recognize this and not discourage the child by asking what the drawing is supposed to be."

News Of Interest To Women

6 The Circleville Herald, Thursday February 10, 1977

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Seek Help For Fear Of Sex

DEAR ABBY: I am a 38-year-old woman, and I'm still a virgin. The furthest I've ever gone with a man is letting him kiss me goodnight.

Don't get me wrong. It's not that I wouldn't like to go further, but I am too afraid of sex to let myself.

I am an attractive woman with a slim body. I've been on many dates that I know could have led to the bedroom, but I always broke it up before it got that far.

I am not really afraid of MEN; it's sex I'm afraid of.

Right now I am going with a very gentle and attractive man about my age. We are casually dating, but I know he will want it to lead to sex and maybe marriage. What do I tell him? He will think I'm crazy. I'm not even sure that if I got married I would feel different about sex. Then what would happen?

I don't want to lose him because he's the first man I've even cared for this much. If I need a psychiatrist, I couldn't afford one because I'm supporting my widowed mother who's an invalid. Help me.

"38 AND HOLDING"
DEAR "38": You need to find out why you have been fighting your normal feelings. Please seek professional counseling. And don't delay. If you can't afford a private therapist, call your local Mental Health Association or Family Service. They charge only what you can afford to pay.

DEAR ABBY: A cousin of mine was killed while she was riding on back of a motorcycle with a guy, so my parents made me promise I would never get on a motorcycle without their permission. Well, last summer I broke my promise. Someone saw me and this guy on a motorcycle, so my parents heard about it. I know I should have told them the truth, but when they asked me, I denied it, and they found out I lied. Now they have lost all trust in me, and I'm being treated like a 3 year old.

Abby, if they would only give me another chance, I would never break a promise or lie to them again. All I need is a chance to prove to them that I have learned my lesson and have grown up a lot since last summer. How can I get them to trust me?

DIANNE

DEAR DIANNE: If you're trying to live something down, don't keep bringing it up. Don't whine, nag or beg another chance. That's juvenile. Keep your lip zipped and take your punishment like an adult. You'll be trusted again when your mature behavior becomes apparent.

DEAR ABBY: What should you say to someone who you know has just had plastic surgery for cosmetic reasons?

If you say, "It's a big improvement," they might be insulted because that means they didn't look so hot before.

If you say, "You look much younger," they could take offense because you're implying they looked "old" before.

If you don't say anything, it could be worse because they've spent a lot of money and gone to a lot of trouble hoping for a noticeable change, and if nobody notices, it would all be for nothing.

Isn't some kind of reaction in order when the bandages come off, the black and blue marks have faded and all the swelling has gone down? But what?

LOST FOR WORDS

DEAR LOST: Just say, "You look great!" That will cover everything. Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Valentine Theme For OES Meeting

A Valentine theme was used at the meeting Tuesday night of Circleville Chapter 90, Order of the Eastern Star, held in the Masonic Temple. As they arrived, members were presented pinons of red and white hearts created by worthy matron, Betsy French, who presided at the meeting. Worthy patron, Clarence Radcliffe, gave a reading entitled, "What is a Valentine?"

Honored members present included past matrons, Elaine Bowman, Pauline Cook, Mary Radcliffe, Donna Foreman, Erma Sharpe, Bonnie Rector, Leona Riegel, Betty LeMay, Miriam Barnhart, and Billie Osborne; and past patrons, William Hall, Kenneth Riegel, Clarence Radcliffe and Jim Osborne.

An invitation was received from Jefferson Chapter 300 to attend the Grand Inspection of their chapter in Jeffersonville on Feb. 15.

Mary Clifton and Byron LeMay were reported hospitalized by Good Cheer chairman, Elaine Bowman.

Associate matron, Jean Carter, gave a final report on the recent candy sale and thanked all who assisted in making the project a great success.

A report of the Audit Committee for the Masonic Temple Association was read by Miriam Barnhart.

Becky Goff was approved as a new member of the Rainbow Advisory Board.

Members who can assist in preparing and serving dinners for the Blue Lodge on March 11 and the Scottish Rite on March 17 were asked to contact Mildred Butts, chairman, or the worthy matron.

A meeting for line officers will be held on Feb. 17 at 7:00 p.m. in the Masonic Temple, Kingston.

All members who have not paid their 1977 dues were requested to do so immediately.

After the close of chapter, members retired to the dining room which was decorated in red and white in keeping with the valentine theme. Refreshments were served by Billie Osborne, Jim Osborne, Mary Lou Partee, Miriam Barnhart, and Renee Partee.

The next regular meeting of the chapter will be Feb. 22. Officers are requested to wear street dress.

Child Study League Reports On Activities

Despite the fact that the William-sport Child Study Patron League did not meet during either January or February, they have been active.

Mrs. Paul Whitesed, treasurer, has notified the group that the state dues have been paid and that she has also purchased for the club $100.00 worth of shares in the community park.

The crispest of cookies will soften if left at room temperature in humid climates. To keep them crisp, you can store them in coffee cans with tight-fitting plastic covers, in the freezer.

Ships ahoy! in Health-tex clothes sail through the liveliest days, delighting in colorful new experiences. And they start again neat and clean after a refresher in the washing machine, with no need for the iron. Even the prices are easy. They come in sturdy single knits, double-knits and wovens, for boys, Size 3 months to Size 8, and for girls, Size 3 months to Size 6x.

Darbyville Discusses Protection

Fire and emergency protection were discussed at the Monday night meeting of Darbyville Village Council.

Adrian Buskirk and Dave Jones of the Pickaway Twp. Fire Department met with council to discuss the establishment of services in the village.

In other business, council passed a motion to purchase an electric baseboard heater for council chambers.

The clerk was asked to contact John Huffman about using his tractor to clear alleys of snow, and to contact proper authorities for street signs.

All members were present at the meeting, according to Mayor Marietta Knece.

Council will meet March 7 at 7:30 p.m.

Forest Wolf of Route 1, celebrated his 86th birthday on Monday, Jan. 31. Joining him for a family celebration with ice cream and cake on Monday evening were his wife Ruth, Tom and Martha Rose Smith, Dwight and June Eveland, Eugene and Betty Carter and their three daughters, Pam, Beth and Angie, Michel and Connie Eveland and Marty and Kendra Eveland and their daughter Marcey Kay. Unable to be present was a grandson Roger Weaver and Mrs. Wolf's sister, Vira Davis.

Mrs. Candy Karr celebrated her 21st birthday on February 3 at the home of her parents, Clifford and Katherine Ream of Adelphi. Those present were her husband Charles Karr, Mrs. Carolyn Wharton and Frankie, Mrs. Cindy Radabaugh, Chrisie and Cary Dawn and Curtis Ream. Later in the evening they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Ream Jr. and Mindy.

Last Sunday guests of the Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Lehman and son Rick, helping Rick celebrate his 17th birthday were Mr. and Mrs. Lester St. Clair and children Eric, Brian and Tammy of New Straitsville; Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Lehman and sons Jeff and Adam of Logan, Mr. and Mrs. Loydy Huston of Lancaster; Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Beougher, Carla and Jamey of Piketon. Tammy St. Clair returned home with parents after visiting with her grandparents since Wednesday.

Sunday evening supper guests of Mrs. Zola Flanigan were Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Strous, Steve, Tracy and Kathy and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Strous. The occasion was to celebrate Steve's 19th birthday of Feb. 8.

Sunday afternoon visitors of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hartsaugh were Mr. and Mrs. Edward McKee of Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hupp and Aaron spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hupp, Terry, Pat and Melinda of Whisler.

The following was given to me by a person who wishes to remain anonymous but who thinks a pat on the back never does any harm. She says "there are still many wonderful people in this country of chaos, and I have come to know many of these lovely people right here in our community. Once an uncle of mine visited us from Gallipolis, and was overwhelmed by the friendliness he was shown around Laurelville. Only yesterday I was doing my wash at our local laundramat and discovered I had left my soap at home. A lady I didn't even know gave me the rest of her soap so I could finish my laundry. You may call it insignificant but to me it is these acts of kindness that makes our community a better place to live. Let us look for the good things we can find in life and give Laurelville a reputation for friendly folks."

I would like to say thank you to the persons who called me on the phone and those who stopped me on the street to say they enjoyed my bit of personal reminiscence on the winters when I was a kid, in last weeks column. It seems that it brought back fond memories to some of the older people and made some of the younger ones wonder what I was talking about.

One lady who called said "I was raised in the city, what was a smokehouse?" A good question — I didn't think that those who had always bought meat from a grocery wouldn't know how home butchering was taken care of. They are a little like the small boy who visited a farm for the first time and saw his first cow. All the milk he ever saw was in bottles so he said to the farmer, "which of the cows gives chocolate milk?" Those little things can be confusing. Did you ever wonder how a black cow could eat green grass and give white milk that makes yellow butter?

One lady said write about something else you remember — that could go on and on. I'm good at remembering what I did as a kid but I can hardly recall what I had for breakfast. I know one thing, with all this snow on the ground, how long has it been since you saw a group of youngsters play "Fox and Geese?" Beats snowballing. Another thing, during all this time of snow and slick streets I have only seen one young father pulling his youngster, a tiny daughter, on her little sled and from the broad smile on his face, he was enjoying it as much as she was. My Dad who was the village blacksmith made the only sled I ever owned. I wasn't much for sliding, I always got hurt, but it was the idea that he took time to make it that counted.

Miss Rita Ash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ash Sr. has been a patient in Berger Hospital.

Five Points News

By MRS. FRANCIS FURNISS

Well, we have still got Old Man Winter with us and they way the mountains of snow are piled up around here, looks like we will have it for a good while. Now we know what it is like to be snow-bound. We did not get any mail for nearly a week and we could not get out from our home either way on the road. Our neighbors were very considerate and asked if we needed anything. We did run out of milk and two good Samaritans brought us a gallon on a snowmobile, for which we were very thankful. You can all talk about the good old days but we are not used to having such severe cold weather and it causes a lot of hardships. But cheer up spring is just around the corner and we will all be thankful.

There were 13 present at the Five Points United Methodist Sunday School and the Rev. Zeller brought a very inspiring message on Prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene R. Donohoe of near Washington C.H. were Sunday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Furniss and family.

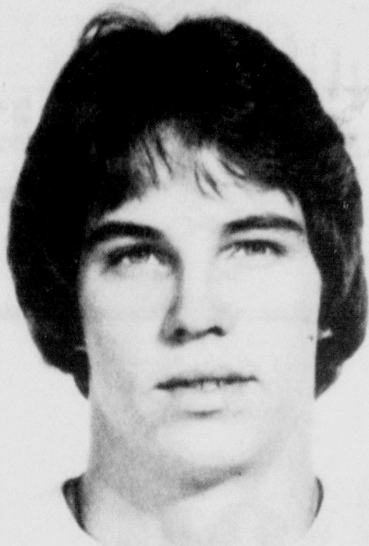

The Monrovia Garden Club meeting which was scheduled for Monday evening Feb. 7 has been postponed for a month due to the severe winter weather.

Star Grange is scheduled to meet Tuesday evening Feb. 8 in the Five Points United Methodist Church basement at 8 p.m., weather permitting.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Everman and son Ted were Saturday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Brigner and family.

School Tax Change Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The sponsor of a bill that would permit voters to shift education taxes from real estate to income says it would broaden the base to include most working people in a school district.

"This would assess them in their productive years," said Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, "It would not tax people in their retirement years." He noted he has some neighbors 80 to 90 years old who are paying school property taxes while his son, Craig, "a recent beneficiary of education," pays nothing to support schools because he owns no property.

Public schools in Ohio are now principally funded by property taxes voted in each school district. Wilkowski's bill would permit districts, with voter approval, to abandon most real estate taxes and substitute a local income tax to produce the same amount of revenue.

He argued for the bill as the House Ways and Means Committee opened hearings on it Wednesday. Wilkowski noted that Toledo public schools were among several in Ohio which had to close for lack of money last November and December after voters rejected new school tax proposals.

He said Toledo voters have rejected the last three school tax proposals.

Chemicals Ravage Man's Cattle Herd 3 Times

CEDAR SPRINGS, Mich. (AP) — George Lemunyon, born and raised on a 90-year-old farm, kept up the family tradition: raising dairy cows as good as any in Kent County. The along came something called PBB.

In the last three years Lemunyon has twice seen his Holsteins die for reasons beyond his control.

After decades of profitable dairying, Lemunyon finds himself perhaps $400,000 in debt and wondering when — and if — he can begin a third time.

"Rightousness will prevail," is Lemunyon's Job-like response. "It will make us stronger men."

His first 332-animal herd was wiped out in 1975 by polybrominated biphenyl or PBB, a toxic fire retardant chemical accidentally mixed with Michigan livestock feed in 1973. That grief — worsened by some bizarre human maladies — was shared with hundreds of other Michigan farmers whose poisoned herds also were slaughtered and buried.

But now the 67-year-old bachelor is enduring a second, more solitary tribulation. His second herd is dying while government officials ponder the cause.

The chilling possibility is that it's another chemical.

"The one fact is that George Lemunyon and that farm out there have suffered immense, severe and catastrophic problems. And I don't think it's his fault," says John March, Lemunyon's attorney in nearby Grand Rapids.

Although the animals have the same dull eyes, listlessness, stiff joints and running sores as PBB-tainted herds, officials know PBB is not the culprit this time.

Ironically, most experts suspect the new $165,000 barn Lemunyon built for his second herd. In the blood of Lemunyon's cows they have found significant levels of pentachlorophenol, or PCP, a toxic chemical used to preserve the wood in the enclosed barn.

They speculate that constant exposure to PCP may be making Lemunyon's cows grow ill and die.

One expert says the PCP used on the farm may have been chemically faulty because the common preservative has been widely used elsewhere for years.

More than a dozen animals, including a 2,200-pound bull and several shriveled calves lie in Lemunyon's yard, stiff and snow-covered because they can't be buried in the frozen earth. Another 80 animals that died in 1976 are buried over the hill beyond his barn.

"The kids used to go out and put up little sticks for a cross but there got to be so many of them that they couldn't get sticks fast enough," says Lemunyon through the few teeth left in his mouth.

Once 204 healthy animals, his herd now has dwindled to almost 100. The state quarantined it in mid-January, meaning he can sell neither the meat nor the milk, which runs out slowly, yellowed and sometimes clotted like cottage cheese.

"We're working for nothing right now," says Bernie Drent, 36-year-old father of three and Lemunyon's partner for the last 20 years. "We put in a lot of long hours for nothing."

Besides the emotional and financial strain of spending $300 daily to feed a worthless herd, Lemunyon and the Drents also are suffering from physical ailments that doctors tentatively have linked with PBB.

Lemunyon says he feels worse than he did three years ago, but won't elaborate. Yet he nimbly scales fences on his farm and appears younger than his years.

But Drent no longer can drive alone to Grand Rapids, 20 miles away. "I get lost and I black out," he says slowly. "I smashed up a combine in 1975."

His 12-year-old son, Bernard Jr., was in a mysterious coma for a week last summer. And 15-year-old Peter, once an honor student, is failing his classes and must nap for hours during the day.

"George has really hung onto this thing trying to find out what the heck goes," says Dr. Lawrence Schalk, his veterinarian. "How, I don't know. Most guys would have thrown up their hands."

For the five of them, it was bad enough in 1974 when the first herd began dropping off. But the problem was pinpointed quickly and nearly 300 cows which had not already died were carted away and buried.

The Michigan Farm Bureau, which mixed the toxic feed, paid Lemunyon $307,401 for his losses. "We were told afterward that we should have gotten more. But we're not people out to gouge anyone," he says.

A month after his first herd was slaughtered, Lemunyon's two main barns burned to the ground. So he spent his settlement for a new herd and a new barn.

But now, state and federal officials say the wood treatment throughout the barn may have been too much for his cows. The barn includes more treated wood than most and his cows rarely leave it for fresh air, officials say.

Produced for decades, the PCP used to treat the lumber is not generally believed hazardous, although warnings caution good ventilation is needed.

Dr. John Moore, who is studying Lemunyon's herd for the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, says pure PCP in itself is not likely to be the problem. The illness could be caused by impurities in the chemical, he says.

With no income, things are getting more difficult on the farm. Less than $500 is left in the bank, the partners say. They may have to begin cashing their stocks and selling machinery or maple trees that have been on the farm for years.

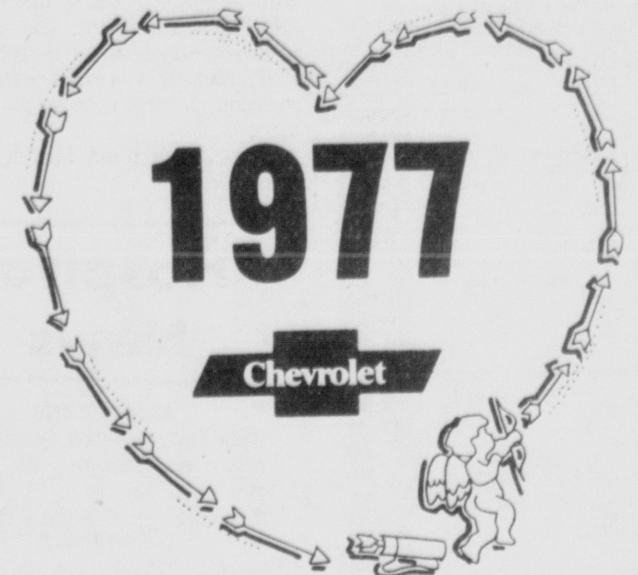

Both dairymen say they cannot keep working much longer at a dying cause.

Maybe they say, someone will be hired to shoot the cows unless the state relieves them of the financial and emotional burden.

As for going back in business again with a third herd, Drent says life's too short and he's too discouraged.

But not George Lemunyon. "Sure, we're going to start over again if we can. We hope to," he says.

Top IRA Guerrillas Captured By Police

LONDON (AP) — "We're the best there's been," Irish Republican Army guerrilla Eddie Butler boasted to Scotland Yard detectives who captured him and three other IRA men after a two-year campaign of terror in English cities.

The Yard men grudgingly agree. "They were considered the most important terrorists in Britain until they were caught," a senior officer commented. "They were all Public Enemy No. 1."

"They were a tight-knit unit, well disciplined, closely integrated and without misfits. They were also the most violent and ruthless cell active in England."

Butler and the other three men were convicted at London's Old Bailey court Wednesday on 25 counts of murder and bombing. Sentencing was set for today.

The squad was part of a crack IRA team trained in the Irish Republic in 1973 to create havoc and panic in England's major cities, Scotland Yard said. The aim was to pressure the British into ending their rule of Northern Ireland, where the Roman Catholic IRA has been fighting for seven and a half years to force the British out of the Protestant-dominated province and unite it with the neighboring Republic.

The leader of the squad was Joseph O'Connell, a sawtoothed 25-year-old Irishman from County Clare on the Republic's west coast. The others were Butler and 24-year-old Harry Duggan, both Irishmen, and Glasgow-born Hugh Doherty.

They surrendered on Dec. 12, 1975, after a six-day siege in an apartment in central London. Among their victims were anti-IRA campaigner Ross McWhirter, a prominent rightwinger and co-editor of the "Guinness Book of Records," and cancer specialist Gordon Hamilton-Fairley, who was killed by a car bomb intended for a member of Parliament in whose home Caroline Kennedy was staying.

Scotland Yard sources said the four were the last of a network of about 20 IRA Provisionals believed responsible for at least 12 killings, more than 50 bombings and a score of shootings between early 1974 and December 1975.

Known as No. 1 Active Service Unit Overseas, they ran an elaborate cell system in England's major cities with bomb factories in rooming houses and suburban villas, hideouts, arms dumps and a gelnite smuggling pipeline from the Republic.

Ginzburg Latest Target Of Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — A shy, redbearded man who has paid out more than $350,000 of Alexander Solzhenitsyn's royalties to Soviet political prisoners and their families is the latest target of the Kremlin's drive against its critics at home.

The arrest last week of Alexander Ginzburg prompted an appeal by more than 200 dissidents for his release and an official expression of concern from the U.S. State Department.

The dissidents' appeal said he was suffering from pneumonia complicated by a chronic tubercular condition. Valentin Turchin, head of the Soviet branch of Amnesty International, said jail meant "certain death for a man in his condition."

The Soviet government has not even said what he is charged with, although the Literary Gazette last week accused him of illegal currency dealings.

Toussled and gaunt from the tubercular condition he picked up during six years in various prisons, the 40-year-old Ginzburg ignored official warnings, police searches and interrogations and managed the relief fund the Nobel prize-winning author established when he was exiled in 1974.

Just before his arrest last week, he told foreign correspondents the fund has paid 270,000 rubles — the equivalent of $363,879 at the official exchange rate — to a total of 1,470 political prisoners or members of their families.

Born Nov. 21, 1936, in a partly Jewish family of economists, Ginzburg was a canoeing champion in 1954, when he was 18. He worked as a lathe operator, actor, theatrical producer and part-time journalist until 1960, when he was sentenced to two years at hard labor for editing Syntaxis, an underground poetry magazine.

He was arrested again in 1964 for allegedly distributing anti-Soviet literature but was released four days later. A Moscow newspaper published a letter over his name attacking "Western propagandists" for trying to make capital of his case.

In January 1968, after a well publicized show trial, Ginzburg and three others were convicted of publishing "The White Book on the Siniavsky-Daniel Affair," a collection of documents pertaining to the 1966 conviction of writers Yuli M. Daniel and Andrei Siniavsky for publishing anti-Soviet writings abroad.

Ginzburg served four years. After his release in 1972, he was denied permission to live in Moscow but managed to spend most of his time here with his wife, Irina, and their two small sons. His record as a political prisoner and his continuing activity in the cause of human rights barred him from steady employment, and he held a succession of temporary jobs, most of them doing manual labor.

He is a leading member of the group formed last May to monitor Soviet compliance with the human rights provisions of the Helsinki Accords signed by the United States, the Soviet Union, and 33 other nations in 1975.

I am my neighbor's Bible - He reads me when we meet. Today he reads me in my home - Tomorrow in the street. He may be relative or friend - Or slight acquaintance be, He may not even know my name - Yet "he is reading me." May there be no credibility gap! Don't pray and talk cream, and live skimmed milk!

Will Baptist Church.

On Feb. 19, at 7 p.m., there will be a Song Fest at the church, featuring Herb and Barb and the Young Disciples, and the Liberty Gospel Singers. A welcome to all.

Sorry to hear Stewart Beers was in an accident, due to the bad weather.

A weight watchers group is meeting each Tuesday evening in the Municipal Building. Everyone is welcome.

Our deepest sympathy goes to the families of Mrs. Grace Farmer, Carl Frederick Younkun and Rex L. Beatty, at their passing last week.

Happy birthdays go to Patty Corry and Albert Smith.

We surely wish to thank all who had part in cleaning our streets, and especially Al Weber, Jim Finch and another man (we didn't get his name) who cleaned out our driveway for us. Many thanks.

Albert Smith celebrated his 75 birthday with a family party at West Way V.F.W. in Columbus, Sunday afternoon. Among those attending (about 40) were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Corry (brother-in-law).

LAKE ERIE
South to southwest winds 15 to 25 knots tonight. Fair. The lake is ice covered.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Temperatures, which climbed above freezing across Ohio Wednesday for the first time since Christmas, were expected to continue moderating today.

The southwesterly flow of mild air was to continue today with temperatures climbing into the mid 40s north to the mid or upper 50s south.

Skies will become partly cloudy north tonight as a weak front approaches from the northwest. Lows will be generally in the low or mid 30s tonight.

A weak front may move into northern Ohio Friday but should produce only mostly cloudy skies to northern counties and partly cloudy conditions in the central sections. Temperatures will remain mild with highs ranging from the mid to upper 40s north to the mid or upper 50s south.

Slow melting will continue but since no rain is forecast through tomorrow, no major flooding problems are expected.

Overnight lows fell generally into the 20s or very low 30s with some patchy fog developing. This was expected to burn off under abundant sunshine today.

Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper

St. Philip's Episcopal Church Youth Group will sponsor its traditional Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper, February 22, in St. Philips Hall, 129 W. Mound St.

Serving time is from 5:30 until 7:30 p.m.

The Menu will include pancakes, sausage, milk, coffee with your choice of either orange juice or tomato juice.

The public is cordially invited to attend. Tickets are available at the door.

In a survey based on the 1970 census, the department said 32 per cent of all workers that year had changed careers since 1965.

Career-switching was the major reason for workers' resignations during the five-year period, the report showed.

The study was published in the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Monthly Labor Review. Dixie Sommers, one of two BLS economists who produced the report, said the number of workers changing careers was surprising.

It suggests that government projections of future job opportunities will have to be revised to incorporate the "tremendous volume" of career changing, she said.

While the study was based on information gathered seven years ago, she said smaller surveys recently show the trend is continuing.

The proportion taking up new trades was highest among young workers and greater among men than women. Professionals, craft workers, farmers and managers showed the strongest job stability, while workers with fewer skills and smaller incomes changed occupations more frequently.

According to the study, only 47 per cent of men and 40 per cent of women with jobs in 1965 had the same occupation in 1970. Some 32.2 per cent of the men and 27.2 per cent of the women switched careers. More women than men dropped out of the labor force entirely — 26 per cent to 14.8 per cent. The rest either were unemployed or had died.

Women were less motivated to change careers largely because they were concentrated in a relatively small number of occupations, had fewer alternatives available and earned less than men in nearly every occupation, the report said.

The proportion of workers changing careers declined steadily with age for both sexes. The percentage was highest for the 16-to-19-year-old group and declined steadily to a low for the 60-and-over group, dropping from about 58 per cent to about 12 per cent for men, and from about 38 per cent to 12 per cent for women.

'Dennis The Menace' Lives Here

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Dennis the Menace still antagonizes Mr. Wilson, loves ice cream and his dog Ruff and idolizes Cowboy Bob, but his real life counterpart is grown up now and says he had a lonely childhood.

Dennis Ketcham, 30, son of Hank Ketcham, originator of the cartoon character, lost his mother at an early age, spent his childhood in boarding schools and rarely saw his father.

Later, he joined the Marines, became a cowboy, married and got a job here as a prison guard.

The younger Ketcham says he had a rambunctious day when he was 4 or 5 years old. He broke a lamp and, when his dad came home, his mother described Dennis as a "real menace." A star was born.

Hank Ketcham, a Walt Disney cartoonist before World War II, started writing Dennis the Menace, based on his son, in 1951. Dennis was an only child and his parents were named Alice and Henry just like in the comics.

"I was like every other 4-or 5-year-old at that time...I got in mischief. I pulled some harebrained schemes once in a while but I was about average growing up," Dennis Ketcham recalled.

"I got teased in school about it. In grammar school they were all ribbing me about it. It took quite a few years to get used to it."

Ketcham went to boarding schools at age 12. His mother died a year later and he wound up staying at boarding schools year round.

"I didn't see my dad too much," he said. "For a while we were sort of few and far between. I felt a jealousy. He was too busy."

"Since I've been married, we've been closer," Ketcham said. "Dad said he has some regrets."

The cartoonist moved to Switzerland 17 years ago. He remarried, has a daughter and his wife is expecting a second child.

Dennis Ketcham joined the Marines and spent 10 months in Vietnam. "I lost a lot of good buddies," he said.

After that, he spent some time "horse wrangling" in Arizona. Three years ago he quit and journeyed to Circleville, near Columbus, to visit a friend. There he met Roxanna Waites in a restaurant. They married and 16 months ago they had a daughter, Jennifer.

He has worked as a corrections officer at the Ohio correctional reception and medical center in Columbus for the past two months, but he longs for life on a cattle ranch.

"It's just too crowded here. I'm used to the wide open spaces. I like the West," he said. "I'm used to that freedom."

Deputies Probe Crashes

AT ACCIDENT SCENE — Cars belonging to Patricia Briner and Reuben Jones are pictured where they came to rest following a Wednesday afternoon accident on Route 22 at the Wintergreen Drive intersection.

Seventeen-year-old Patricia J. Briner, Route 1, was admitted to Berger Hospital for treatment of multiple injuries she suffered in a 3:50 p.m. Wednesday accident on Route 22 at the intersection of Wintergreen Drive.

Ms. Briner is being treated for neck and back injuries, a concussion, and a puncture wound to her right thigh, according to Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff J. Phillip Brown.

Reuben R. Jones, Route 5, driver of the other car, was treated at the hospital for back injuries and later released.

Both cars were eastbound on Route 22, according to Deputy Brown, when the Jones auto struck the rear of Ms. Briner's car as she was slowing to make a right turn onto Wintergreen Drive.

Jones was charged with failing to maintain assured clear distance.

Canadians Expect To Ship Energy

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — The Canadian government told Ohio Gov. James Rhodes Wednesday it probably will be able to ship more emergency fuel supplies to his energy starved state.

Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said following an hourlong meeting with the governor that the National Energy Board will consider "within 24 hours of receipt" any request from Ohio companies for more natural gas, propane, fuel oil or heavy oil.

He added that he could not say how much fuel is available now. It is a matter the energy board will decide when the requests are made.

Gov. Rhodes, after thanking the Canadian government for the emergency fuel supplies already provided, said he would return to Ohio and advise the companies to apply as soon as possible.

were injured in a two-car accident 12:01 p.m. Wednesday on the Bolender Pontious Road between Route 22 and the Stoutsville Pike.

Both were treated for minor injuries at Berger Hospital's emergency room, according to Deputy Billy Huffman.

Driver of the other car, Chester R. Allen, 18, Circleville Bible College, was not hurt.

Wellman was a passenger in Dray's auto.

The accident occurred when both cars were attempting to crest a hill

Mild Air Proves Rule

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mild temperatures were the rule again this morning after a day of above-freezing temperatures that was just about nationwide.

Like Wednesday, the freeze held out today in the northern Appalachians, northern New England and a few spots in upper Michigan.

For some spots in Michigan and western New York, the thaw was the year's first.

There was some rain and fog in south central Texas and some light snow near the shores of lakes Ontario and Huron. Patchy low cloudiness and fog dotted the remainder of the Great Lakes region.

There was some snow in Arizona. Flagstaff reported a six-hour snowfall of one inch.

Rain spread to the Washington coast as the result of an approaching storm system, but the storm was not expected to reach far enough south to bring needed moisture to California. High pressure began to rebuild over California, so future storms will again be deflected northward.

Overnight temperatures ranged from 3 degrees at Idaho Falls, Idaho, to 66 at Key West, Fla.

Jordanian Queen Alia Crash Victim; Rites Held Today

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordan's young Queen Alia was buried in the royal cemetery near Amman today less than 24 hours after her death in a helicopter crash.

King Hussein, wearing a red and white Bedouin headdress, stood by grief-stricken but dry-eyed as the queen's flag-draped coffin was lowered into its grave.

A crowd of about 3,000 mourners, mostly Jordanian dignitaries, stood silently during the 90-minute service in a nearby mosque and later at the cemetery.

Queen Alia, a 29-year-old diplomat's daughter and champion of women's rights, had flown to At Tafilah in the mountains 200 miles south of Amman to inspect a hospital. Her helicopter ran into a rainstorm and crashed, killing the queen, Health Minister Mohammed El Bashir, an air force doctor and the pilot. There were no survivors.

The burial was held on short notice at the new royal cemetery adjacent to the Hashmiya Palace, 15 miles west of Amman.

The king's close men relatives stood by his side during the funeral, but none of the royal womenfolk or children were present. Bedouin tribal chieftains bent and kissed the monarch's hand.

Among foreign dignitaries at the ceremony were President Hafez Assad of Syria and West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher.

Alia was Hussein's third wife. They had been married four years and had one child, a 2-year-old daughter.

The palace announced 40 days of official mourning and flags were lowered to half staff.

In an emotional radio and television broadcast, the 41-year-old king said: "God has chosen my beloved Alia to be by His side and she is not coming back. Those with her were also martyred."

Hussein said the queen decided only that morning to make the tour. He stayed behind to meet with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

"In the evening, I received reports that the aircraft was overdue, and later that contact had been lost with it. The plane was caught in heavy rain storms and crashed.... Finally I received the tragic news that ... Alia will never return...."

"My eulogy about the queen, Alia the human being, my beloved wife, is to praise her noble character, her humanity and her great heart."

Hussein's first wife was an Egyptian, Dina Abdel Hamid, who bore him a daughter. They were divorced and in 1961 he married an English girl, Tony Avril Gardiner, who became a Moslem and changed her name to Muna. They had two sons and two daughters before their divorce.

Alia was the daughter of Baha-Eddin Toukan, a Palestinian from the West Bank of the Jordan River who became Jordan's ambassador to Egypt and the United Nations. She was born in Cairo, studied in Rome, took a bachelor's degree in political science at Hunter College in New York, and did public relations work for the Jordanian airline. Hussein was a longtime friend of her family.

A tall, self-assured blonde, she sometimes rode a motorcycle before her marriage, learned water skiing from her husband, dressed in Western fashions and liked blue jeans.

More Data On Budget Being Sought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers trying to put together Ohio's new operating budget want to know what effects plant shutdowns and other weather problems have had on the state's revenue picture.

In a joint statement Wednesday, House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., and Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, asked Gov. James A. Rhodes to take another look at his 1977-1979 revenue estimates.

The request came as the Senate and House wrapped up another abbreviated work week and adjourned floor sessions until next week. Both planned only skeleton sessions today.

In the only significant floor action Wednesday, the House approved two measures and sent them to the Senate, one of which makes a $1.7 million appropriation to carry out reforms in the state's embattled workmen's compensation program.

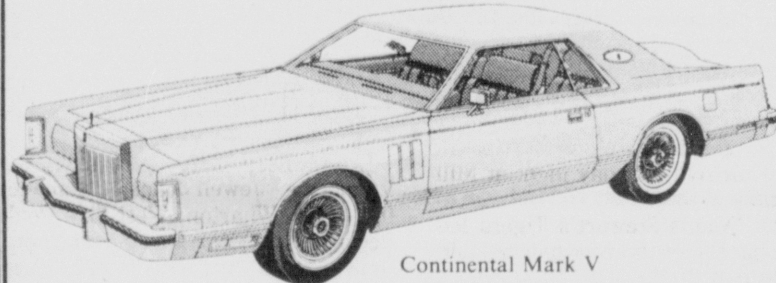

Following up on an override of a Rhodes veto, each chamber formally installed assistant majority floor leaders who immediately became eligible for a pay raise.

The governor vetoed last year a bill establishing the positions and providing for salary increments above the $17,500 normally earned by senators and House members.

Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, took over as assistant floor leader in the upper chamber, at a salary of $20,000, while the House elected Rep. Patrick A. Sweeney, D-6 Cleveland, to a corresponding post at $19,000.

In their statement, Riffe and Ocasek reiterated their pledge for a "lean, no nonsense, responsible budget."

CHS Reserves Conquer Hillsboro

After building up a first half lead the Circleville reserves ran into a cold third quarter but maintained their poise to gain a 39-29 decision over visiting Hillsboro Friday night at Mill St. gym.

Coach Dennis Stewart's Tigers led 12-8 at the end of the first quarter and ran the margin to 21-10 at halftime. But, they only managed to put two points on the board in the third period while Hillsboro was ringing up nine to run the count to 23-19 at the third period buzzer.

But, the Tigers turned it all on in the final frame to gain the 39-29 decision.

Peter Harrison led Circleville with 15 points, Brian Sealock added nine, Richard Elsea, Carey Dean and Jeff Strawser all had four, Richard Pfeleger tallied two and Donald Hill netted one.

Jeff Gilliland was tops for Hillsboro with eight, Gary Schraw hooped six, Phil Cole, Steve McConaughy and Jeff Banks each netted four while Robin Gossett added three.

Circleville is now 9-2, 6-1 in the league, and will be at Madison Plains Friday night.

SUMMARY

CIRCLEVILLE — Harrison, 7-1-15; Elsea, 0-4-4; Dean, 2-0-4; Pfeleger, 0-2-2; Sealock, 4-1-9; Strawser, 1-2-4; Hill, 0-1-1. Totals, 14-11-39.

HILLSBORO — Cole, 2-0-4; Gilliland, 3-2-8; McConaughy, 2-0-4; Gossett, 1-1-3; Banks, 2-0-4; Schraw, 2-2-6. Totals, 12-5-29.

Nets Edge New Orleans

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Bubbles Hawkins exploded on the basketball court and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar nearly exploded off it.

Hawkins, whom the New York Nets signed as a free agent just two months ago, put on a one-man show Wednesday night, scoring a career-high 44 points to lead the Nets past New Orleans 93-89 in overtime in the National Basketball Association. Abdul-Jabbar went into the Buffalo stands to "discuss things" with a heckler after leading Los Angeles back into first place in the Pacific Division with a 106-90 verdict over the Braves.

"I still don't think I've arrived yet," Hawkins said after hitting for eight of the Nets' 14 overtime points in New York's comeback victory. "But it sure is nice to show people I can play."

One Braves fan's heckling finally got to Abdul-Jabbar. With 39 seconds remaining in the game, Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 32 points, went into the stands to confront the kibitzer.

"The guy gave me a lot of derogatory remarks," Abdul-Jabbar said. "I asked him if he wanted to take it up personally. He didn't want to."

Elsewhere in the NBA, San Antonio outshot Detroit 135-129, Indiana overcame a 21-point disadvantage to edge the New York Knicks 110-109, Philadelphia sneaked by Milwaukee 107-104, Houston topped Chicago 108-103 and Atlanta defeated Seattle 99-98.

Metro Meet Slated For Teays Valley

The Marysville Monarchs will come to Teays Valley this weekend defending their Metropolitan League wrestling crown as the 1976-77 version of the Metro League wrestling meet gets underway at the Viking gym Friday night.

Friday night will be for the reserve squads, with the first matches slated to start at 5:30 p.m.

Saturday the varsity squads take the mats with the preliminaries starting at 11 a.m. The finals will go at 7 p.m. Saturday night.

Olentangy's Braves, along with Floyd Gray's Vikings are expected to provide the stiffest competition for the Marysville team.

TV Frosh Defeat Marysville '5'

The freshman cagers of Teays Valley handed visiting Marysville a 49-33 defeat Wednesday.

R. D. Roese led the Vikings with 20 points, Dean Brown added 12, Scott Bartholomew tallied five, David Myers and Shawn Blue each netted three while Bill Pettibone, Mark Hoover and Randy Riegel all had two. Brad Stults hopped 12 for Marysville.

Teays Valley is now 6-0 and will be at Olentangy 5:30 p.m. today.

Despite the long layoff the Circleville Tigers helped to heat the Mill St. gym Wednesday night as they fired a hot 64 per cent from the floor and downed visiting Hillsboro, 64-57, in a South Central Ohio League clash.

It was a tight ball game all the way and the Tigers were trailing 12-10 at the first quarter and fell behind 28-24 at halftime.

Hillsboro opened an eight point lead early in the third quarter but the Cats sharpened their claws and went to work to gain a 37-34 lead at 4:41 and they never trailed again. However, the Indians went on the rampage and cut the gap to two in the fourth period.

But, the hair on the Tigers' backs bristled and they promptly chased the Redskins back to the reservation and maintained control the rest of the way.

Toren Bensonhaver paced the Tigers with 16 points, Frank Merrill and Eric Pontious both netted 13, Brent Wright hooped 11, Tom Taylor tallied eight and Tim Milstead added three.

Tim Fuller and Tim Sharkey both hit 13 to lead Hillsboro, Randy Sanders hit 11, Gary Larimer sank 10, Gary Coffman ripped eight and Tyler Woods had two.

Circleville connected on 27 of 42 from the floor for 64 per cent but went the other way at the foul line where they only converted 10 of 23 for 43 per cent.

The Indians also carried a hot-hand into the game as they hit 21 of 39 from the floor for 54 per cent and hit 15 of 20 from the charity stripe for 75 per cent.

Hillsboro pulled down 21 rebounds with Tim Fuller and Tim Sharkey getting the job done.

The Red and Black cagers hauled in 19 missed shots with Brent Wright and Toren Bensonhaver pounding the boards.

Hillsboro committed 21 turnovers in the game, 11 in the second half, while Circleville misplayed the ball twice.

Bensonhaver hit six points and Merrill added four in the first quarter to account for all the Tigers points while all five of the Indians got into the scoring act.

Pontious came off the bench in the second canto to fire the Tigers with six points and a shot by Milstead gave the Tigers a short 22-21 lead.

But, Sharkey showed his teeth as he tallied seven unanswered points to give the Indians daylight and a half-time lead.

Coffman opened the third frame with four straight points to open the gap to eight points and it looked like Hillsboro just might be on their way.

But, the Tigers refused to panic and

Northern Illinois Tops Broncos

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It was a battle of the zone defenses again when Northern Illinois and Western Michigan squared off in a key Mid-American Conference basketball clash Wednesday night.

"But this time their zone was the big story," Western Coach Dick Shilts observed after Northern downed the Broncos 68-60 to claim sole possession of second place in the league standings.

Northern's zone virtually shut off

Western, with Mike Reardon's 12 points being tops for the Broncos.

"In the second half, Northern's offensive rebounding and second efforts were vital," Shilts said.

"We had particular trouble then because we had to work against the set zone and because Northern scored so many times on second efforts. We had our fast break opportunities taken away from us."

The triumph improved Northern's

No Quick End Seen To Football Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — There appears to be no settlement in sight in the 3-year-old on-again, off-again negotiations between the National Football League owners and players union over a new collective bargaining agreement.

The result could be another round of law suits against the NFL by player agents who want to put their clients on the market to the highest bidder.

There was some confusion over whether the two sides had broken off negotiations over a new contract to replace the one which expired Jan. 31, 1974.

Bob Epstein, spokesman for the players, issued a brief statement Wednesday afternoon on behalf of Ed Garvey, executive director, in which he said: "After two days of negotiations there is absolutely no progress. It is now clear that the Feb. 15 deadline was unrealistic and there is little optimism on our side."

Epstein then said he did not know when the two sides would meet in the near future.

When asked for comment, Terry Bledsoe, spokesman for the NFL Management Council, said he had not attended the afternoon session and had no comment except that it was his understanding they were still meeting. A subsequent call to Epstein indicated that the two sides were still together. The negotiations were being held at an undisclosed location, so all information had to come from the two spokesmen.

Garvey had set the Feb. 15 date as a deadline for reaching an agreement but the owners, although suggesting they also would like to have a signed contract by then, would not be as specific.

The pressure to reach an early agreement came last September when a federal judge declared the draft of collegiate players to be in violation of the antitrust laws. An agreed-to contract would make it feasible to stage the draft.

Both sides agree that there can be no maintained their poise. Wright, Bensonhaver, Taylor and Pontious all put points on the board and the Tigers took a 37-34 lead on a three-point play at 4:41 in the period and the Tigers never trailed again.

A driving layup by Larimer cut the Tigers margin to 48-46 with 5:04 to play but the Red and Black bounced right back and led by nine at one time before winning with a 64-57 margin.

With 0:03 remaining on the clock and the Tigers leading, 64-57, the Indians took the ball out of bounds under their own basket.

The cager attempted a long, high, full-court pass which hit and shattered one of the lights and the officials and both coaches decided to call the contest.

"I thought it was our best overall game of the year," Circleville coach Jim Bailey stated. "We felt that our boys showed real poise and hustle. They were down by eight points at the beginning of the third quarter and had Hillsboro pull to within two points in the fourth quarter."

"But our boys maintained their poise and came on to win. When we were behind our defensive hustle kept us in the game and offensively I felt we did an outstanding job of getting good short selections which gave us a 64 shooting percentage from the floor," Bailey commented.

"Co-Captains Frank Merrill and Tom Taylor both gave us a strong all-around game with excellent defense. They both shot 60 per cent from the floor and only had one turnover apiece. Toren Bensonhaver had his best offensive game of the year and came up with several key rebounds."

"Despite being in foul trouble, Brent Wright battled Hillsboro's Fuller to a standstill and was exceptionally tough in the clutch. Roy Huffer's ball handling and defense really helped us and Eric Pontious came off the bench to add fire with key rebounds, 13 points and a hard effort."

"Tim Milstead added some rebounding strength and gave a scrappy performance while Mike Brudzinski really showed improvement in his first real taste of action."

"Considering the two week layoff, we couldn't have asked for a better performance from our boys," Bailey said.

The Circleville Fun and Fundamental teams, fifth and sixth graders, played during the halftime of the reserve and varsity game.

Circleville is now 7-4 on the season and 4-3 in league play. They will travel to Madison Plains to meet the Golden Eagles Friday night.

Toledo Goadiggers Defeat Komets, 5-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dave Johnson tied and then broke Toledo's all time International Hockey League scoring record with his 50th and 51st goals Wednesday night as the Goadiggers whipped Fort Wayne 5-0.

The 51 goals snapped a 23-year-old mark set by Dick Pontarollo.

Toledo, leading the IHL's South Division, raised its record to 26-24-5. Fort Wayne is in last place with a 21-24-7 mark.

In other IHL action, Muskegon crushed Port Huron, 8-0; Columbus tied Kalamazoo, 3-3; and Dayton defeated Saginaw, 5-1.

Marquette Rips Loyola

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

When Al McGuire starts screaming at his team, shutting the door on sports writers and recriminating himself, you know something's up.

Actually, it's the Marquette Warriors.

FANS TO RENDER VERDICT — Ed Kranepool, last of the original Mets, chats with his son, Keith, 8, in their Farmingdale, N.Y. home. Kranepool thinks fans will render the final verdict on the 1977 free agent money binge and that teams that put out big money will be expected to produce big results.

Ford Unnerves Johnny Miller

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Miller was discussing the problems attendant to playing a round of golf with former President Gerald Ford, Bob Hope and Sammy Davis Jr. The foursome played before a massive, enthusiastic, shouting gallery that lined every fairway four or five deep, was constantly moving, clicking cameras and calling words of encouragement.

"It's difficult," Miller said. "There is no advantage to playing in that group."

Then he paused and a mischievous grin flashed across his face.

"Wait until (Billy) Casper plays with him on Saturday," Miller said of Ford's fourround partner, a normally-placid veteran who angers only at crowd noises and camera clicks. "There'll be even more people. And Billy will finish with all his hair in his pocket."

Miller, who has won the last two Bob Hope Desert Classics, could do no better than a 74 in the company of the celebrities who drew a huge gallery to the Indian Wells Country Club for Wednesday's first of five rounds. This is a unique, 90-hole event that is spread over four courses in the desert resort where Ford plans his retirement home.

"That's about par, 74," Miller said. "That's what Arnold (Palmer) had at Pebble Beach" in another pro-am event with the former President as his partner last month.

While Miller was slashing his way to a two-over-par effort on probably the easiest of the four tournament courses, Rik Massengale, the runner-up last year, fired an almost errorless round of 64 in which he hit every green, missed only one fairway, didn't have a bogey and dropped putts totaling more than 50 yards in length.

He holed two birdie putts of 20 feet, two more of 30 and one from about 45 in establishing a three-stroke lead over Alan Tapie and Bruce Lietzke, the young man who has had such a sensational start this year. Lietzke's five-under-par effort, like Massengale and Miller, was at Indian Wells and marked the 17th consecutive round this season — 22nd going back to last year

Muhammad Ali Eyes Another Bout

SEOUL (AP) — The South Korean government is favorably considering a proposed world heavyweight title bout between champion Muhammad Ali and an unnamed challenger here in early May, a local sponsor announced Thursday.

The newspaper Hankook Ilbo said that it already has initialed an agreement with American promoter Paul Covino for staging the fight in Seoul.

Covino told the Korean daily that Ali wanted to defend his title in Seoul when the promoter first approached the paper through its New York bureau last December, Hankook Ilbo said.

The Florida Derby for 3-year-olds will be run at Gulfstream Park in Florida on March 7, a Monday.

John Pacella, a 22-year-old right-handed rookie on the roster of the New York Mets, features a fine fast ball. He was 12-11 at Lynchburg in 1976.

Psychologically, the Marquette coach has no peer. McGuire knows how to get a basketball team higher than a dunk shot — and that's apparently what he did Wednesday night to inspire Marquette to an 81-71 victory over Loyola of Chicago.

The ninth-ranked Warriors, mindful of a post-season bid to the NCAA playoffs, blew a 12-point lead in the first half and this inspired a fierce confrontation with McGuire at intermission.

"I thought at halftime we were in serious trouble," McGuire said. "We had to do it at the start of the second half, which we did. But I told them the second half might be the most important 20 minutes of the whole season, because if you blow it you'll never forgive yourselves."

Translated, that meant McGuire thought that a fourth loss would greatly injure the Warriors' chances for an NCAA bid.

Obviously dead serious about a national championship in his last year as coach, McGuire refused to allow newsmen to interview his players after the game. He said the policy would continue for a week so that the players can concentrate on their goal of a tournament bid.

Elsewhere in college basketball, sixth-rated Louisville routed Southwestern Louisiana 103-82, 12th-ranked Cincinnati defeated Eastern Kentucky 78-60, 14th-ranked North Carolina walloped Maryland 97-70, 16th-rated Providence turned back DePaul 84-73 and 19th-ranked Detroit beat St. Bonaventure 78-62.

Butch Lee and Bo Ellis each scored 22 points for Marquette. The Warriors held a slim 36-33 lead at the half, but pulled away after intermission behind their top scorers. A 10-point flurry gave Marquette a 50-37 lead and later it was 68-51 with 5:55 left.

Louisville tied a school record by winning its 15th straight game. Rick Wilson and Darrell Griffith each scored 18 points for the Cardinals, who twice led by 34 points in the second half.

Brian Williams scored 15 points, Bob Miller 13 and Steve Collier 12 in a balanced Cincinnati attack that led the Bearcats over Eastern Kentucky. Cincinnati held a 40-26 halftime edge and led by as many as 29 points in the second period.

Walter Davis produced 25 points and 12 rebounds to lead North Carolina past Maryland. The Tar Heels led the entire game and at one juncture held a 29-point advantage.

Bob Cooper scored 24 points and collected 10 rebounds, leading Providence over DePaul. Terry Tyler amassed 21 points to lead the University of Detroit past St. Bonaventure.

In another game, Freeman Williams, the nation's leading scorer, poured in 71 points to lead Portland State past Southern Oregon 142-85. Williams' figure is the third highest in Division I history, surpassed only by Frank Selvy's 100-point outing for Furman against Newberry in 1954 and Bill Milkvy's 73 against Wilkes for Temple in 1951.

Rick White Named Top OAC Player

CLEVELAND (AP) — Wittenberg's Rick White, a 6-foot-4 senior, has been named the Ohio Athletic Conference Player of the Week after scoring 67 points in three games last week.

White helped the Tigers maintain their first place edge in the OAC Southern Division, as well as their No. 3 ranking in the NCAA Division III.

The Athens, Ohio, native had 17 points and seven rebounds in Wittenberg's 75-68 victory over Dennison, tossed in a career high 26 points and pulled down 15 rebounds in an 83-78 triumph over Kenyon, then poured in 24 points and grabbed nine rebounds in last Saturday's 82-77 decision over Ohio Wesleyan.

Geisler Ends Basketball Connection

NEW YORK (AP) — It's like a guy divorcing his wife after many years of conjugal bliss.

But there are no tears from Richard M. Geisler. As happens in life itself, he found it necessary to turn to a fresher, younger, more vital interest.

"Sure, it's a sentimental thing — very emotional," the youthful-looking president of Spalding Sporting Goods said in speaking of his company's decision to break off a 100-year tradition of providing baseballs for the major leagues.

"It is a commentary on the times. Twenty years ago, we were more team oriented. Today, it's physical fitness, exercise and participation."

"Tennis is America's fastest growing sport. Golf and bowling are thriving. The newest fad is cross-country skiing. Women have become prime customers. And now there are some 300,000 Americans playing amateur soccer. We have become a nation of participants, not just spectators."

There was another reason: economics. "We were losing 50 to 75 cents on every ball," Geisler said.

When the Yankees' Roy White looped a fly to Cincinnati's George Foster for the final out of the 1976 World Series, it marked the last ball wearing a Spalding label to be struck in major league baseball.

When players hit the Sun Belts for spring training later this month, the balls will carry a new imprint: Rawlings, a Spalding competitor.

There is a poignancy about the disappearance of the Spalding ball from the major league scene, although Spalding balls will continue to be sold over the counter. The Spalding ball is entwined with the rich history of the sport. It helped rock the cradle.

Albert G. Spalding, born in Byron, Ill. in 1850, was one of the game's pioneers, a pitcher who later started a small sporting goods business and helped found the National League in 1876. Until this year, every ball ever used in the major leagues had the word "Spalding" stamped between the stitching.

It was the ball old Cy Young threw for 508 pitching victories, Babe Ruth knocked over the fences for 714 home runs and Hank Aaron for even more, the ball with which Don Larsen pitched a perfect game in the 1956 World Series. It's the ball that sits by the thousands on limitless shelves with autographs of the greats and near-greats.

The ball itself has undergone many changes, even dictating the course of baseball history. First it had a rubber center, changed in 1909 to cork. The "rabbit" ball emerged in the 1920s, the golden age of Ruth, and hitters in the 1950s complained of a "dead ball."

"The ball never has been purposely changed to aid either the pitcher or the batter," Geisler said. "Materials have changed but the ball always has had to meet rigid specifications in size and velocity."

Spalding produced 2½ million baseballs a year, 250,000 going to major leagues at around $1.75 each. In seeking to renew a 10-year contract, Spalding asked baseball for a five per cent price boost, or $1 a dozen. Baseball said "no."

So Spalding closed the door on an era and went for the bottom line.

Your Views On Horoscope Television

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Excellent planetary help for gaining ground in several areas. Take advantage of every possible opportunity. Associates should be cooperative.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Be prepared to withstand opposition, unexpected disturbances. You CAN settle matters — in a way that will win the admiration of others.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Do whatever you can to facilitate work projects. Don't bank on achieving more than usual gains, and you may be surprised with more than you expect.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Be concise, but not abrupt, eager to further your own interests, but not unkindful of others. Your attitude could change the whole picture, one way or the other.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Act swiftly if conditions are right, but proceed slowly where the going is tricky and there are obstacles which cannot be overlooked.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Listen to suggestions carefully. Advice from even the least likely source could prove profitable. There's plenty working for you now.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Some admonitions now: Curb emotions and DO prevent needless errors through miscalculation or hasty actions. Do not be dismayed if you have to revise some of your plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Good Mars influence should make this a highly stimulating day. But don't overtax yourself. Make some time for relaxation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Your innate dexterity in tight spots a big aid now. Some unforeseen situations possible. You can solve problems by planning carefully, then taking direct action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): As with Sagittarius, some unexpected situations likely, but don't let them keep you from following a well-charted course. Time lost can be made up with a bit more efficiency.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Be alert to good offerings. Your aptitude lends itself to this type of day. Study, diversify your interests, broaden your horizons.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You are shaping future results NOW, so be rightly concerned about your course of action. Concentrate on what you do best.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great ambition, unusual versatility and an extremely outgoing personality. Once you have developed your talents and learned the value of self-discipline, you will brush obstacles from your path in an outstanding climb to great accomplishment. You have a brilliant wit, which makes you a delightful conversationalist, but be careful not to use it too sharply. Other traits to curb? Hyper-sensitivity and excessive volubility. Fields in which you could excel: literature, science, invention, music, the graphic arts. Birthdate of: Thomas Alva Edison, noted inventor.

The siege of Vicksburg during the Civil War lasted 47 days. It ended July 4, 1863, a victory for the Union Army.

TWO CAR CRASH — Mildred D. Hettinger, 21, Cox's Trailer Court, was treated at Berger Hospital for multiple contusions, neck injuries, and a sprained wrist following a two-car accident 7:50 a.m. Thursday at the intersection of Route 22 and Mill Road. Brenna Lintner, 17, Route 2, driver of the other car, was not hurt. According to Deputy Jim Deal, Ms. Hettinger was in the process of pulling onto Route 22 from Mill Road when her car was struck by the Lintner auto, which was traveling east on Route 22. Ms. Hettinger was charged with failing to yield the right of way.

Carter Pats Backs Of Bureaucrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is visiting Cabinet departments one by one, encouraging bureaucrats in hallways, offices, cafeterias and auditoriums to be imaginative, unafraid of change and more responsive to the people.

Carter set aside time today to walk to the Treasury, next door to the White House, to meet in the Cash Room with employees. Lined with tellers' cages until it was closed last summer, the Cash Room was the Federal Reserve System's last remaining bank that cashed checks.

Now an empty room with marble walls, the Cash Room once turned checks into greenbacks and silver for government workers and others. It became known as a place where the poor with no bank accounts of their own could cash their welfare checks.

Like other banks of its kind across the country, it was shut down as uneconomical.

The President arranged to ride from the Treasury to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, where hundreds of workers were invited to the cafeteria to hear him. He also planned to visit several offices in the building.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter will tour every Cabinet department "to see the people and to express ... his direct concerns." Powell said there is no significance to the order of the President's visits.

Carter went to the Labor Department on Wednesday. "Be aggressive, dynamic and imaginative," he told its employees. "I don't want any of you to be afraid of change ... I want an aggressive, constant search for a better way to deliver services."

With Cabinet secretary Jack Watson in tow, the President ventured first into the crannies of the department, entering with Secret Service agents through the basement, taking an elevator to the second floor and greeting workers in the hallways.

Carter moved slowly, clutching hands like he was picking cotton.

Several women touched the hands of others who touched the President. "Jimmy, Jimmy ...," they shouted. "Mr. President, Mr. President." His bodyguards cleared a path to the department's marble lobby, where Carter stepped onto a small stage.

Government Gives Push To $2 Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having failed on its own, the government now is considering paying an advertising agency $300,000 to convince Americans they need the $2 bill.

Officials admit disappointment in the public reception given the $2 bill since it was brought back with considerable fanfare about 10 months ago.

In fact, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing has stopped printing the bills, at least temporarily. Of the approximately 415 million that were printed, about 222 million actually went into circulation.

But that number is not as impressive as it might seem. Millions of the $2 bills apparently were hoarded away as souvenirs soon after they were issued last April 13, and have been unused since.

James A. Conlon, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, said he is encouraged that four million of the $2 bills showed up in circulation in December, the last month for which a count is available.

Conlon said in an interview that he thinks consumers want the $2 bill but just aren't getting a chance to use it because retail merchants aren't distributing it.

"The apparent reluctance by retailers to utilize the notes in making change ... that's the key focal point," he said.

Conlon said there is no danger yet that the new $2 bills will go the way of the old $2 bills, which were phased out of circulation in 1966 because people weren't using them. "We're firm in our intention," he said.

He said the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Federal Reserve Board are proposing a "more positive" public relations campaign than has been tried before to win acceptance for the $2 bill.

If Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal approves, Conlon said, the agencies will seek bids from advertising agencies and others to undertake the campaign, which would cost about $300,000.

The purpose in reissuing the $2 bill was to replace some of the $1 bills in circulation and save the government up to $7 million a year in printing costs.

It costs about $15 to print 1,000 bills regardless of denomination.

Soviet Air Designer Dies

MOSCOW (AP) — Sergei Ilyushin, creator of more than 50 Soviet airplanes from World War II attack planes to modern passenger jets, has died, Tass reported today. He was 82.

Ilyushin's IL2 became famous during World War II and German forces dubbed it "the flying death."

Since the war, the letters "IL" have appeared on the fuselages of a whole series of passenger planes in homage to the man who designed them.

The latest, the IL86 Airbus, which seats 350 passengers, has passed trials to be put into service by the Soviet airline Aeroflot.

Sergei Vladimirovich Ilyushin began working in an aviation hangar in 1914 and from there became an army mechanic and went to flying school, graduating in 1917. In 1926, he was graduated from an air force engineering academy, then began to move up in Soviet aircraft construction and design. He won the Lenin and state prizes for his work and was three times Hero of Socialist Labor.

His son, Vladimir Sergeevich Ilyushin, who is now 49, is a test pilot and aircraft engineer.

Ohio Labor Leaders Eye Energy Savings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's labor leaders, at the request of Gov. James A. Rhodes, have come up with a plan to help the state cope now and in the future with critical energy problems.

Part of a package of recommendations Wednesday was a proposal to consider raising the severance tax on coal, from the present four cents a ton to $1,400, to produce about $70 million a year.

The Governor's Labor Advisory Committee on Energy, headed by Ohio AFL-CIO President Milan Marsh, said tax dollars will be needed to finance the state's search for more energy supplies.

Rhodes praised the labor leaders' recommendations, saying they demonstrated a "spirit of cooperation...to prevent a recurrence next year of the problems we have suffered the past few weeks."

He sent their report along to leaders of the General Assembly. Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, singled out none of the specific recommendations but said he generally favored the report and would like to see a bill introduced, incorporating at least part of the package.

The committee said a boost in the severance tax should be considered because Ohio's tax is the lowest in the nation.

It noted that in western states, it amounts to $1.40 a ton on coal, while Ohio levies only four cents a ton. "An increase to the western rate for coal should produce about $70 million a year," the committee said.

Otherwise, the labor group endorsed the governor's call for the use of Ohio's high sulfur coal and urged that the state prevail upon federal environmental officials to stretch out the effective dates of emission standards.

It also supported the governor's request for more research to develop Ohio's vast deposits of shale as an energy source. The committee suggested a small demonstration project should be undertaken—perhaps in one community which could be made self sufficient through recovery of gas from shale wells.

A series of conservation measures was advocated by the group, including the restriction of stores and businesses to 40 hours of operation each week.

The committee called further for tax breaks for insulation of older homes, a statewide energy code for new and existing buildings, the development of temperature and light standards with "reasonable enforcement" in industrial, residential, and commercial buildings, and the development of utility rate structure to penalize the wasteful use of energy.

It said Ohio should fight federal deregulation of natural gas prices, and that the Public Utilities Commission should determine if Ohio's utilities have "overrecovered" on their present rate filings.

Ohio's Energy Research and Development Agency "has been lacking" when compared with similar agencies in other states, and should be reviewed, the committee said. Besides the AFL-CIO, other unions represented on the governor's special committee were the United Auto Workers, Teamsters and the building trades.

Seek Plain Resolution

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — After the New Hampshire Executive Council approved a $12,625 contract for the governor's commission on crime and delinquency, one councilor asked whether the next such grant "could be presented in English, please."

The cover letter accompanying the grant said that, among other things, it would:

"Develop groups of evaluation modules for several types of programs to consist of sophisticated and quantitatively oriented research designs to be used in evaluation programs."

"Establish minimal data requirements as required by the evaluation modules and set in place a system through which a continual flow of empirical data will be directed toward the commission's evaluation staff."

"Establish through the use of computer analysis modules a highly empirical and quantitative means for policy makers to make decisions about programs."

Approval was unanimous.
